MURDER HELD NO CRIME IN LEOPOLD CODE?

So Quoted By Police Officer Who Is Put on Stand During the Hearing

DARROW IN ACTION

Lawyer Cross-Examines Police Officer on "Friendly Judge" Statement

Chicago, July 26.—Insinuating that the state's testimony which credited Nathan Leopold Jr. with a desire to plead guilty before a "friendly judge" was a fabrication, Clarence Darrow, chief counsel for Leopold and Richard Loeb, struck hard today at this evidence.

It was the first time since the boys pleaded guilty to the kidnapping and murder of Robert Franks that their counsel had challenged the truth of any material fact brought out by the witnesses summoned by Robert E. Crowe, states attorney.

For the first time since the opening of the hearing on Wednesday, which is to fix the penalty for the youthful slayers of Franks, a state witness was cross-examined at length by the defense.

Detective Sergeant James Gortland, who yesterday told of conversations with Leopold in which the college student defendant, revealed his reaction to the crime he confessed, was stubbornly cross-examined by Attorney Darrow as to the style of his notes and his experience as a police officer.

The action of the defense was in the nature of a challenge of the testimony of Gortland in which virtually every statement in chief was examined in the most minute detail.

It was Gortland who, yesterday as the state's 67th witness before Chief Justice John R. Caverly of the criminal court, who quoted Leopold as having declared murder to be no crime in his code.

Add Two Aliens
As the fourth day's session began it was learned that the defense had added to its staff of alienists two eastern experts noted for their work in juvenile delinquency.

The witness was asked to read textually his short-hand notes on the statement that if he decided he would prefer life imprisonment to the gallows, he would "plead guilty before a friendly judge."

For a considerable time thereafter, the cross-examination centered on the friendly judge conversation.

Several times during his questioning of the witness Mr. Darrow conferred with his associate counsel, Benjamin Bachrach, and the boy defendant "listened in" on the whispered consultations.

After an hour's cross-examination Gortland was temporarily withdrawn from the witness stand and ordered not to converse with anyone in the courtroom while Jacob Weinstein, general manager of an optical establishment, was called by the state to identify the glasses found near the railroad culvert which yielded Franks' body.

The sudden switching of witnesses was agreed on by counsel as an accommodation to Mr. Weinstein, who was waiting in the witness room.

Identifies Glasses
Weinstein identified the glasses presented by the state as corresponding to the identification called for "on a job envelope," on which appeared the name of Nathan Leopold Jr.

"Now, Mr. Officer," Mr. Darrow, concluded in cross-examination Gortland, after he resumed the stand, "Don't you know this story of your talk about a friendly judge is a pure fabrication for the purpose of intimidating the court?"

"It is not," was the response.

Twenty-Seven Children Are Left Fatherless in Pennsylvania Accident

Gates, Pa., July 26.—The bodies of ten miners, killed last night when an explosion wrecked the mine of the H. C. Frick Coke Co., were brought to the surface shortly after dawn today. Seventy-five miners were at work when the blast came, and check of the company lists showed that 65 reached safety.

Twenty-seven children were left fatherless as a consequence of the explosion while nine women lost their husbands. One of the victims was a widower.

ARRESTED FOR OLD MURDER

Man Held For Slaying of Parents 14 Years Ago

Coatesville, Pa., July 26.—Benjamin F. Dorschheimer, an Atlantic City, N. J. real estate dealer, was under arrest here today charged with the murder of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Dorschheimer, in Lancaster, Pa., 14 years ago. He declares his arrest was the result of "spite work" on the part of his brother, Frank E. Dorschheimer, who swore to the warrant.

The warrant alleges that in order to obtain possession of the estate of the father, a wealthy liquor dealer, Benjamin Dorschheimer asphyxiated his parents as they slept in April, 1910.

There was no explanation in the warrant for the delay in making a charge, and Frank Dorschheimer refused to discuss the case.

BUFFALO RUN WILD IN CITY

Stampede in Residential Section of San Francisco

San Francisco, July 26.—A buffalo stampede and hunt in a residential district of San Francisco ended yesterday with the rounding up of 25 bulls and cows that broke from their paddock in Golden Gate park yesterday. The beasts, after breaking down the wire fence that kept them in their paddocks, stampeded to nearby lawns and forced citizens to seek places of safety.

One old bull engaged a street car and was driven off by the motorman, armed with his controller bar. Timid householders remained indoors while the maddened buffalo raced around their homes, wrecking gardens and fences. A part of the herd was rounded up Thursday night and soon after dawn yesterday morning park guards and mounted police drove the others back to the Zoo.

In the last ten years the American public invested over $17,000,000,000 for motor vehicles.

Optimism Still Is Expressed at Inter-Allied Conference, Despite the Failure Thus Far to Reach an Agreement on the Subject—Hint Given That Compromise May Be Reached Monday

London, July 26. (By the A. P.)—Renewed efforts were being made today to effect a compromise between the apparently irreconcilable attitude of the French delegates to the inter-allied conference and the stand of the international financiers on guarantees for the proposed 40,000,000 pound loan to Germany which will launch the Dawes plan on reparations.

Notwithstanding the weekend holiday the leading representatives of the allied governments here did not relax their endless toil to break the deadlock which has assumed such serious proportions.

An acceptable compromise, it was said, would still allow the French to maintain their rights under the Versailles treaty and at the same time provide such guarantees that financiers could still offer the German bonds to investors with assurance of perfect safety.

Despite the delay, the atmosphere of the conference negotiations is not altogether pessimistic. A British official said the technical work of the conference had been accomplished and that the conferees were ready for the next plenary session next Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

This is taken by many to indicate that an agreement between delegates from France and bankers is impending.

Only three problems remain to be dealt with. The first is the all-important one of reconciling the bankers' one of reconciling the proposed method of dealing with German violations of the Dawes plan. The second is a minor question of railroad control in the Ruhr and the third is the question of German representation at the conference.

It is expected Berlin will be requested immediately to send delegates to London. It is increasingly evident the British and French premiers do not intend to give way entirely to the demands of the financiers who would float the German loan. It is believed it would be political suicide for either premier to do so.

LaMoore County Will Wage War On Sow Thistles

Fargo, July 26.—Deputy weed commissioners have been appointed in every township in the county by the LaMoore county board of commissioners in their intensive war against the sow thistle pest, according to County Extension Agent, H. C. Pollock who declares excellent progress is being made.

The weed, however, has been slow this season, Mr. Pollock states, and is just coming into bloom but in spite of the difficulty in finding it several new patches have been located.

According to reports received by the county agent's office a few townships in LaMoore county appear to be without any of the "yellow peril" as yet. On the other hand some townships are said to have discovered sow thistle in places never before visited by the weed. "Reports encourage the belief, however, that the weed is not so well established in LaMoore county but that it can be gotten rid of by a vigorous campaign against it," said Mr. Pollock.

NEW BANK FOR DUNN CENTER IS ANNOUNCED

Institution to be Backed By Men Prominent in Big Dickinson Institution

Dunn Center, N. D., July 26.—Announcement is made here today of the formation of The Union Bank of Dunn Center, at Dunn Center, Dunn county.

The organizers are: R. H. Johnson; H. P. Johnson; V. H. Stickney; T. A. Tollefson; H. E. Skauge and A. P. Nachwey, all of Dickinson and Herman Leutz of Taylor. The capital is $15,000.00, application for charter has been made and efforts are being made to commence business on August 10.

With the exception of H. E. Skauge and Herman Leutz, the above named are all directors of The First National Bank of Dickinson. Mr. Leutz is a director and vice-president of The Security National Bank of Taylor.

Dunn Center has been without banking facilities for almost a year and the men interested in the organization of this new bank considered the Dunn Center community very much in need of a bank.

H. E. Skauge will likely have charge of the affairs of the new institution. He is well known in the community and has fifteen years of banking experience in the state.

The Bank Building formerly occupied by the First State Bank has been taken over and will be the banking house used by the new institution.

HOWELL WILL AID COOLIDGE

One of "Radical Bloc" To Support President

Washington, July 26.—President Coolidge was assured of the support and service in the national campaign of Senator Howell, of Nebraska, one of the Republican members of the senate who often has voted against his administration and with the group headed by Senator LaFollette.

Returning to Washington after a month's stay in his home state, Senator Howell called at the White House to discuss political and agricultural conditions and to offer to Mr. Coolidge his support and his services as a campaign speaker in Nebraska and in nearby states. He predicted a close fight in Nebraska, and said there was considerable sentiment prevailing for Senator LaFollette.

Mr. Coolidge also discussed politics, particularly Pennsylvania politics, yesterday with Senator Pepper of that state and E. A. Van Valkenburg, publisher of the Philadelphia North American, who were guests at luncheon at the White House.

SEES NEED OF 12,000 MEN IN FIELDS OF N. D.

State Employment Director Kitchen Plans For Opening of Labor Offices

EXPECTS ENOUGH MEN

Sees Failure of Canadian Crop as a Boon to State Farmers in Hiring Men

Twelve thousand farm laborers will be needed for harvest work in North Dakota, in addition to those already here, it is estimated by Commissioner of Agriculture J. A. Kitchen, in charge of employment service in the state, following his return from a trip during which he made arrangements for the opening of free employment offices in the state August 1.

Conditions are favorable for North Dakota obtaining plenty of harvest help, Mr. Kitchen said. The drought and hot winds in Canada have caused many laborers who had planned to go there to turn to North Dakota, where there is prospects of a fine crop, he said, and the advertising of North Dakota's good crop has also brought many laborers into the state already. Fields will be more free from weeds than usual, and the grain will be easy to handle, he said. The reduction in grain acreage and the increase in corn, in sweet clover and other crops will render less pressing the need for harvest labor, making the harvest longer, he said.

J. S. Williams, federal director of employment in Minnesota and a member of the state industrial commission of that state, has agreed to handle the job of securing laborers for North Dakota through informing them of the special low railroad rates effective July 26. Mr. Williams seeks information as to the needs of various communities, he said.

Labor offices will open in the state August 1, in addition to the large office, as follows: Minot, in charge of Olyde Nelson; Bismarck, Herman Broccoli; Devils Lake, Oliver Gens; Grand Forks, G. C. Laistwaite; Oakes, Edward Stock.

P. E. Estimates
The Northern Pacific has issued a statement of harvest labor needed and probable salary scale, based upon information from agents in North Dakota. The harvest, it is estimated, will begin at most places in North Dakota from August 1 to 10. Prevailing day wages in the harvest fields, board included, range from $2.50 to $3.50 per day, some places reporting they expect to pay $4.00 per day.

MAJORITY FOR TREATY VOTE IS SUPPORTED

Davis, Democratic Nominee, Is Against the Two-Thirds Rule in Senate

Dark Harbor, Islesboro, Me., July 26.—Treaties should be ratified by a majority vote of both houses of congress, instead of a two-third majority of the senate, as the constitution now requires, in the view of John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee.

In giving voice to this belief here Mr. Davis made his first declaration of policy since his nomination, but he was only reiterating a statement more than a year ago at the time he was president of that organization.

"I said that and I still say it," Mr. Davis declared in reply to questions as to whether he had made such a statement. "I believe with John Hay, the forefather in their wisdom fixed it so that the kickers could rule. If I had my way the kickers would not be able to rule."

Treaties had been ratified in the same way that laws are made. One strikes at the vitals of the government no more than the other. I do not know of any other civilized government that requires more than a majority, and I do not see why it should be required in this country."

Asked if his acceptance address would disagree with the party platform, especially with reference to the plank proposing a referendum on the League of Nations, Mr. Davis said it would not "disent from it."

Mr. Davis will leave here next Thursday returning to New York. He will have a week there in which to round out his address of acceptance and hold further conferences before leaving for Clarksburg, W. Va.

PROTECTION FOR U. S. RESIDENTS IN PERSIA IS DEMANDED BY AMERICAN STATE DEPARTMENT FOLLOWING INSULT

Washington, July 26.—State department officials prepared today to formally ask the Persian government to take immediate measures to protect American citizens in that country from attacks and insults from natives understood to be hostile toward foreigners since the killing of Major Robert Imbrie, American vice-consul at Teheran and developments following that affair.

Decision of the department to take this action followed receipt of advice from Joseph F. Kornfeld, American minister, telling of insults to Mrs. Imbrie, widow of the slain, by a young Persian who was said to be responsible.

According to the minister's dispatches, the Persian youth tore a veil worn by Mrs. Imbrie, attempting to tear it from her and at the same time, expecting upon her person. The reported outrage was said to have occurred at Teheran last Tuesday. The native reported to have been some distance away from the place where Mrs. Imbrie was attacked but who it believed to have witnessed the attack made no attempt to interfere or capture the assailant, the dispatch said.

WHEAT RISES ABOVE $1.50 AT WINNIPEG

Chicago, July 26.—Wheat today sold above $1.50 a bushel at Winnipeg, the first North American market to reach that goal. Chicago prices followed, breaking all high records for the season, and showing a maximum advance today of 6 1/2 cents.

Unfavorable crop comments from the Canadian Northwest were a contributing cause for the new advance here, but the main influence was that ascribed by market authorities as "the strong world situation," especially an upturn today of eight pence a bushel at Liverpool for immediate delivery of wheat.

HOME TOWN OF INMATE BACKS FREEDOM PLEA

Roland Gans, Sentenced For 20 Years For Auto Theft, To Seek Liberty

BOARD IS INTERESTED

The state board of pardons, when it meets in a special session next Tuesday, will consider the application of Roland Gans, aged 26, sentenced to prison in Fargo last February 7 for 20 years for automobile theft, for a parole.

The Gans case, quite different from most parole cases, originated largely through the efforts of Judge H. A. Bronson, a member of the board. An application had been prepared by Gans before the last session, but it was filed too late, and Judge Bronson suggested, after investigating the case, that Gans file a new application.

Gans pleaded guilty to automobile theft after he and Charles Mauer were caught in a stolen automobile in Cass county, according to pardon board records. Gans was sentenced to serve 20 years by Judge Cole, but Mauer has not been tried, being out on bond of $5,000, the records here show.

Gans appeared to be a clean young man, and attracted the attention of Judge Bronson. He is deared to have an excellent prison record. Correspondence with people in Gans' home city of Juliet, Illinois, has brought strong pleas for him. He is, according to information from there, a graduate of the Joliet Conservatory of Music, a high class musician, and of respectable family of the city.

Two or three of these writing to the pardon board declare their belief that he is of excellent character.

"This young man was born and raised in our city and I have known him ever since childhood, as well as his parents, who are respectable law-abiding citizens," wrote Mayor G. F. Sehring.

"This young man's vocation is Professor of Music, and I can vouch for his ability as he was an instructor of my daughter for a long while. 'I know that there is no wrong motive in this young man's character and I am convinced that he is a victim of circumstance."

"I believe you will be influential enough to obtain this young man's freedom and put him back in the ranks of a good citizen, I am—"

L. M. Rubens member of the fire and police board of Juliet, wrote for the young man, as did the police magistrate, probate judge and others, and three jobs were offered him on his return to Juliet, one by a real estate firm, one as a musician and one by an automobile company.

COUNTY VOTES $11,000 FUND FOR FAIR HERE

County Commissioners Pass Budget, Including This Appropriation in It

MANY ASKED FOR IT

Prominent Citizens Appear Before Board to Request This Action

County commissioners of Burleigh county, in session today completing their budget for the ensuing year, adopted the budget with a half-million levy, estimated to yield $11,000, included in it for a Burleigh county corn and dairy show and fair.

The action of the commissioners confirmed the tentative provision for this amount in the budget, made some days ago. Yesterday was the time set for hearing on the budget, when taxpayers might appear and protest or offer suggestions. Several local business men interested in the fair appeared before the board and asked that the appropriation be granted, so that a fair association might be organized here.

Strong representations were made to the commissioners that public opinion throughout the county, as sounded in newspaper interviews and personal conversations of those appearing, was for the fair.

Make Big Cut
The budget as finally adopted carried a total of $189,000, including about $21,000 sinking and interest fund. The estimated reduction in the budget over last year by the county auditor was about $50,000, almost a 25 percent reduction in the estimate of expenses of the county for the next year. This was accomplished by marked slashes in many proposed expenditures by the commissioners. Yesterday $25,000 was cut off the road fund appropriation.

Among those who appeared before the board in connection with budget matters was F. W. Pusch, tax expert for the Northern Pacific Railway.

GIRL TARRED, FEATHERED

Charged With Receiving Attention of Married Man

Frederick, Md., July 26.—Mrs. Lloyd Shank, wife of a farmer, was under liberty today on a $2,000 bond on a technical charge of assault and battery growing out of the tarring and feathering of Miss Dorothy Grandon, 20 years old, near Myersville, Thursday night.

Eight men also involved in the affair likewise were at liberty under similar bonds. Miss Grandon was held in jail in default of $500 bond as a material witness.

Those arrested were a part of about 50 men alleged to have composed the mob that participated in tarring and feathering of the Grandon girl who had been accused by Mrs. Shank of receiving the attentions of her husband.

RETURNS FROM CONVENTION OF POLICE CHIEFS

Chief of Police Chris Martinson has returned from Toronto, Canada, where he attended the convention of the International Chief of Police Association. About 3,000 were present, including many famous criminologists from England and other European countries.

Many noted criminal cases were explained to the visitors, and there was considerable discussion of methods of handling automobile traffic and other police problems. Chief of Police Martinson said.

SHOTS FIRED AS BAND TRIES TO DYNAMITE SAFE

Two Bandits Complete Blowing of Safe While Duel Is On, Says Report

ALL WIRES WERE CUT

Details Meager, But It Is Believed That Bandits Failed to Get Loot

While villagers and three bandits who were posted as guards exchanged a hot pistol fire, two other bandits completed the blowing of the safe in the Farmers Exchange State Bank at Sanger, a point in Oliver county, 25 miles north of Mandan, about midnight last night.

Meager details were given to Sheriff Charles McDonald of Morton county by W. B. Richardson, cashier of the bank, who drove to a point three miles from Sanger immediately after the bandits left and using a telephone in a farm home, requested Mr. McDonald to post posse.

Sheriff McDonald stationed men on all roads north of Mandan in an effort to intercept the robbers, but they failed to come this way.

The railroad and telephone wires into Sanger were cut, and an accurate story of the affair could not be secured at noon.

It is not believed that a great amount of cash was carried in the bank.

Ole Engen of Fargo is president of the bank.

A report received over Northern Pacific wires, said the safe could not be opened but that it was doubtful if the robbers had secured anything.

CLAIM REPORT OF ANTI-JAP MOVE IS FALSE

Dispatches Cabled Saying California Ku Klux Klan Is Active

Sacramento, Calif., July 26.—Japanese in Sacramento expressed surprise at San Francisco dispatches which have been cabled from San Francisco to Japan stating that Japanese farmers near Sacramento and Santa Rosa have been forced from their homes by the Ku Klux Klan.

Japanese, who were questioned last night, stated they had not heard of any occurrences of this nature, and expressed belief that the reports are untrue.

The police also said they had not heard of such occurrences.

Santa Rosa, Calif., July 26.—No disturbance in connection with Japanese landholders in the Santa Rosa valley have been reported here, according to the Santa Rosa Press-Democrat, late last night saying word from confidential sources close to leaders in the Ku Klux Klan hereabouts revealed that no move contemplated to disturb Japanese land owners had been put forth by any secret organization here.

2 LAWYERS OF N. D. ABROAD

Represent State at Bar Association Meeting in London

Two North Dakota lawyers, L. J. Paida and John H. Lewis of Minot are the sole representatives of the bar of this state in London with the American Bar Association, according to Chief Justice H. A. Bronson of the supreme court, who with Paida and Lewis and S. E. Ellsworth of Jamestown were the only North Dakota lawyers at the American Bar Association meeting in Philadelphia, prior to the voyage to London.

The North Dakota lawyers at the American Bar Association convention found much of interest, Judge Bronson said. Representatives of the state in the American Bar Association were chosen as follows: Vice-President for North Dakota, John H. Lewis; members of local, state council, John Knapp of Jamestown, Alfred Zuger of Bismarck; L. J. Paida of Minot; Aubrey Lawrence of Fargo.

Justice Bronson was named on the general council of the association. A proposed uniform state law providing for arbitration, favored particularly by commercial bodies, probably will be introduced at the next session of the North Dakota legislature, according to Judge Bronson, a member of the committee of the American Bar Association on uniform state laws.

The butterfly fish remains almost motionless throughout the day.

Institution to be Backed By Men Prominent in Big Dickinson Institution

Dunn Center, N. D., July 26.—Announcement is made here today of the formation of The Union Bank of Dunn Center, at Dunn Center, Dunn county.

The organizers are: R. H. Johnson; H. P. Johnson; V. H. Stickney; T. A. Tollefson; H. E. Skauge and A. P. Nachtwey, all of Dickinson and Herman Leutz of Taylor. The capital is $15,000.00, application for charter has been made and efforts are being made to commence business on August 10.

With the exception of H. E. Skauge and Herman Leutz, the above named are all directors of The First National Bank of Dickinson. Mr. Leutz is a director and vice-president of The Security National Bank of Taylor.

Dunn Center has been without banking facilities for almost a year and the men interested in the organization of this new bank considered the Dunn Center community very much in need of a bank.

H. E. Skauge will likely have charge of the affairs of the new institution. He is well known in the community and has fifteen years of banking experience in the state.

The Bank Building formerly occupied by the First State Bank has been taken over and will be the banking house used by the new institution.

HOWELL WILL AID COOLIDGE

One of "Radical Bloc" To Support President

Washington, July 26.—President Coolidge was assured of the support and service in the national campaign of Senator Howell, of Nebraska, one of the Republican members of the senate who often has voted against his administration and with the group headed by Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin.

Returning to Washington after a month's stay in his home state, Senator Howell called at the White House to discuss political and agricultural conditions and to offer to Mr. Coolidge his support and his services as a campaign speaker in Nebraska and in nearby states.

He predicted a close fight in Nebraska, and said there was considerable sentiment prevailing for Senator LaFollette.

Mr. Coolidge also discussed politics, particularly Pennsylvania politics, yesterday with Senator Pepper of that state and E. A. Van Valkenburg, publisher of the Philadelphia North American, who were guests at luncheon at the White House.

SEES NEED OF 12,000 MEN IN FIELDS OF N. D.

State Employment Director Kitchen Plans For Opening of Labor Offices

EXPECTS ENOUGH MEN

Sees Failure of Canadian Crop as a Boon to State Farmers in Hiring Men

Twelve thousand farm laborers will be needed for harvest work in North Dakota, in addition to those already here, it is estimated by Commissioner of Agriculture J. A. Kitchen, in charge of employment service in the state, following his return from a trip during which he made arrangements for the opening of free employment offices in the state August 1.

Conditions are favorable for North Dakota obtaining plenty of harvest help, Mr. Kitchen said. The drought and hot winds in Canada have caused many laborers who had planned to go there to turn to North Dakota, where there is prospects of a fine crop, he said, and the advertising of North Dakota's good crop has also brought many laborers into the state already. Fields will be more free from weeds than usual, and the grain will be easy to handle, he said. The reduction in grain acreage and the increase in corn, in sweet clover and other crops will render less pressing the need for harvest labor, making the harvest longer, he said.

J. S. Williams, federal director of employment in Minnesota and a member of the state industrial commission of that state, has agreed to handle the job of securing laborers for North Dakota through informing them of the special low railroad rates effective July 26. Mr. Williams seeks information as to the needs of various communities, he said.

Labor offices will open in the state August 1, in addition to the Fargo office, as follows: Minot, in charge of Clyde Nelson; Bismarck, Herman Brocopp; Devils Lake, Oliver Genov; Grand Forks, G. C. Laistwaite; Oakes, Edward Stock.

N. P. Estimates
The Northern Pacific has issued a statement of harvest labor needed and probable salary scale, based upon information from agents in North Dakota. The harvest, it is estimated, will begin at most places in North Dakota from August 1 to 10.

Prevailing day wages in the harvest season, based on last year, range from $2.50 to $3.50 per day, some places reporting they expect to pay $4.00 per day.

MAJORITY FOR TREATY VOTE IS SUPPORTED

Davis, Democratic Nominee, Is Against the Two-Thirds Rule in Senate

Dark Harbor, Islesboro, Me., July 26.—Treaties should be ratified by a majority vote of both houses of congress, instead of a two-thirds majority of the senate, as the constitution now requires, in the view of John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee.

In giving voice to this belief here Mr. Davis made his first declaration of policy since his nomination, but he was only reiterating a statement he made last year when he was elected more than a year ago at the time he was president of that organization.

"I said that and I still say it," Mr. Davis declared in reply to questions as to whether he had made such a statement. "I believe with John Hay, the forefather of their wisdom fixed it so that the kickers could rule. If I had my way the kickers would not be able to rule."

"Treaties had been ratified in the same way that laws are made. One strikes at the vitals of the government more than the other. I do not know of any other civilized government that requires more than a majority, and I do not see why it should be required in this country."

Asked if his acceptance address would declare the party's position on the League of Nations, Mr. Davis said it would not "dissent from it."

Mr. Davis will leave here next Thursday returning to New York. He will have a week there in which to round out his address of acceptance and hold further conferences before leaving for Clarksburg, W. Va.

PROTECTION FOR U. S. RESIDENTS IN PERSIA IS DEMANDED BY AMERICAN STATE DEPARTMENT FOLLOWING INSULT

Washington, July 26.—State department officials prepared today to formally ask the Persian government to take immediate measures to protect American citizens in that country from attacks and insults from natives understood to be hostile toward foreigners since the killing of Major Robert Imbrie, American vice-consul at Tehran, and developments following that affair.

Decision of the department to take this action followed receipt of advices from Joseph F. Kornfeld, American minister, telling of insults to Mrs. Imbrie, widow of the former consul for which a young Persian was said to be responsible.

According to the minister's dispatches, the Persian youth tore a veil worn by Mrs. Imbrie, attempting to tear it from her and at the same time expectorating upon her person. The reported outrage was said to have occurred at Tehran last Tuesday. The native reported to have been some distance away from the place where Mrs. Imbrie was attacked but who it believed to have witnessed the attack made no attempt to interfere or capture the assailant, the dispatch said.

SHOTS FIRED AS BAND TRIES TO DYNAMITE SAFE

Two Bandits Complete Blowing of Safe While Duel Is On, Says Report

ALL WIRES WERE CUT

Details Meager, But It Is Believed That Bandits Failed to Get Loot

While villagers and three bandits who were posted as guards exchanged a hot pistol fire, two other bandits completed the blowing of the safe in the Farmers Exchange State Bank at Sanger, a point in Oliver county, 25 miles north of Mandan, about midnight last night.

Meager details were given to Sheriff Charles McDonald of Morton county by W. B. Richardson, cashier of the bank, who drove to a point three miles from Sanger immediately after the bandits left and using a telephone in a farm home, requested Mr. McDonald to post posse.

Sheriff McDonald stationed men on all roads north of Mandan in an effort to intercept the robbers, but they failed to come this way.

The railroad and telephone wires into Sanger were cut, and an accurate story of the affair could not be secured at noon.

It is not believed that a great amount of cash was carried in the bank.

Ole Engen of Fargo is president of the bank.

A report received over Northern Pacific wires, said the safe could not be opened but that it was doubtful if the robbers had secured anything.

Sacramento, Calif., July 26.—Japanese in Sacramento expressed surprise at the news dispatches which have been cabled from San Francisco to Japan stating that Japanese farmers near Sacramento and Santa Rosa have been forced from their homes by the Ku Klux Klan.

The police also said they had not heard of such occurrences.

2 LAWYERS OF N. D. ABROAD

Represent State at Bar Association Meeting in London

Two North Dakota lawyers, L. J. Paida and John H. Lewis of Minot are the sole representatives of the bar of this state in London with the American Bar Association, according to Chief Justice H. A. Bronson of the supreme court, who with Paida and Lewis and S. E. Ellsworth of Jamestown were the only North Dakota lawyers at the American Bar Association meeting in Philadelphia, prior to the voyage to London.

The North Dakota lawyers at the American Bar Association convention found much of interest, Judge Bronson said. Representatives of the state in the American Bar Association were chosen as follows: Vice-President for North Dakota, John H. Lewis; members of local, or state council, John Knauff of Jamestown; Alfred Zuger of Bismarck; L. J. Paida of Minot; Aubrey Lawrence of Fargo.

Justice Bronson was named on the general council of the association. A proposed uniform state law providing for arbitration, favored particularly by commercial bodies, probably will be introduced at the next session of the North Dakota legislature, according to Judge Bronson, a member of the committee of the American Bar Association on uniform state laws.

RETAINS HER FAITH IN SIKI

Wife Abroad Does Not Believe Report of Marriage in U. S.

Paris, July 24.—"This is a thing which I cannot believe about him," said Gertrude Amphler, the Dutch girl who came to Paris from Holland in 1921 with Suzanne Siki, a pugilist, when she was told of the pugilist's marriage in New York.

The news was imparted to her at almost the moment when she was being disposed of the little home in Vanves, a Paris suburb, where she had lived with Siki until he left for the United States.

A few chairs in the garden, a ping pong table and a few blankets were all that remained today of the pomp with which Louis Foll, alias Battling Siki, furnished the little villa when he brought back with him from Holland the woman who the neighbors say has suffered much from the pugilist's eccentricities. The pugilist after a six months' delay in the payment of rent, finally told "Mme Siki" that she must move.

"I have no certificate to show I ever married Louis," she said. Then she pointed to the child playing about the sidewalk with other children returning from school and asked: "Can I have a better marriage certificate?"

The woman then told a dispiriting story of love that had failed, of unfulfilled promises, and of the flight from Holland against the advice of her staid, middle class dutch parents.

Chicago, July 25.—Thirty federal prohibition agents who conducted a series of raids in West Hammond were forced to draw their pistols to defend themselves and send to Chicago for reinforcements when several hundred men, women and children surrounded and threatened to attack them. Bricks were hurled through the windshields of the raiders' automobiles and one officer was hit and injured. Ten saloons were entered, 10 persons arrested and a truckload of liquor was confiscated.

Warrants for the arrest of Police Captain Michael Gallery and three patrolmen will be asked, Chief Prohibition Enforcement Agent Charles W. Vursell, said last night.

MAY ASK G. O. P. ELECTORS IN STATE TO DECLARE INTENTIONS

Presidential electors on the Republican ticket in North Dakota, who ran on the La Follette ticket in the March 18 primary but under the ordinary rules of politics would be expected to support the Republican nominee in the electoral college, if they are elected, may be asked to state their stand definitely.

President Coolidge is the Republican nominee and his name will appear at the top of the column containing the electors' names. A lot of Republicans would like to know whether, if successful, they will support Coolidge or La Follette. WHEAT GROWER MAKES REMARKABLE PROGRESS IN GETTING HIMSELF OUT OF DIFFICULTIES OF WAR

Increase in Diversification in North Dakota Plainly Shown by Graph of the North Dakota Agricultural College — Reduction in Wheat Acreage Has Affected the Price.

Fargo, N. D., July 26.—The wheat grower, with plenty of encouragement from outsiders, got himself into a hole during the war.

The wheat grower, with little help from outsiders, has climbed out of the hole since then. He has done this by readjusting production approximately to domestic consumption requirements.

This is the belief of President John Lee Coulter of the North Dakota Agricultural college.

This adjustment has been a most important factor in bringing wheat prices up from the low level of last winter than the Canadian drought and the world situation, he declares.

By practicing the program advocated by the Agricultural college for accelerated diversification and reduced wheat acreage, farmers of North Dakota and of the spring wheat area have brought about a large part of the wheat acreage reduction, and the consequent higher prices according to President Coulter.

"The large increases in the prices of wheat in the United States began with the publication June 10 of official reports showing the domestic production for 1924 to be about equal to consumption requirements," Doctor Coulter declares. "This situation resuscitated the tariff, hitherto not fully effective because of the large exportable surpluses in the United States, and the price of wheat rapidly rose from 20 to 25 cents per bushel, or from about 95 cents per bushel to $1.20 per bushel."

RECENT INCREASES

"Increases of the past few weeks of from 10 to 15 cents per bushel are largely attributed to the Canadian drought and the indicated world shortage of wheat. From now on the price will depend upon the development of rust and other damage factors in the United States, and upon the changes which may take place in the status of the wheat crop in Canada and other foreign countries."

"Consumption of wheat per capita in the United States is about 6.1 bushels. Estimated population for January 1, 1925 is 133,000,000, making the consumption requirement for the 1924 wheat crop about 690,000,000 bushels. The latest and largest official estimate of the wheat crop for the United States is 740,000,000 bushels, leaving a possible balance of 50,000,000 bushels. This balance may be accounted for by the normal exports each year of certain varieties of soft and durum wheat and by low quality wheat used for feed. The present high prices for corn increase the possibility of profitable feeding of low quality wheat."

"From the 1919 wheat crop in the United States 300,000,000 bushels were exported, as compared with the present estimated possibility of 50,000,000 bushels this year."

"The present favorable position of the American wheat grower is the product of his own progress toward adjustment of acreage to domestic consumption. In 1919 the winter wheat acreage was 50,494,000, and in 1924 36,898,000, a reduction of 13,596,000 acres. For the same years the spring wheat acreage was 25,200,000 and 16,920,000 respectively, or a reduction of 8,280,000 acres, making a total reduction of 21,876,000 acres."

Part N. D. Has Played

"What part has North Dakota played in this readjustment?" the president was asked.

"Farmers of North Dakota have done more than their share in bringing about this change," he replied. "In 1919 North Dakota farmers grew 9,098,000 acres of wheat. This year wheat acreage is reduced to 7,436,000 acres, another bread grain which competes to a certain extent with wheat, occupied 2,037,000 acres in this state in 1919 and only 966,000 acres this year. This makes a total reduction in acreage of bread grain crops during the five years of 2,733,000 acres, or approximately a cut of 25 per cent."

The extra acreage which was devoted to bread grains is now being used for the production of feed crops to care for North Dakota's growing livestock industry, and to the production of flax and potatoes, according to statistics compiled by Mr. Coulter from the United States department of agriculture yearbooks.

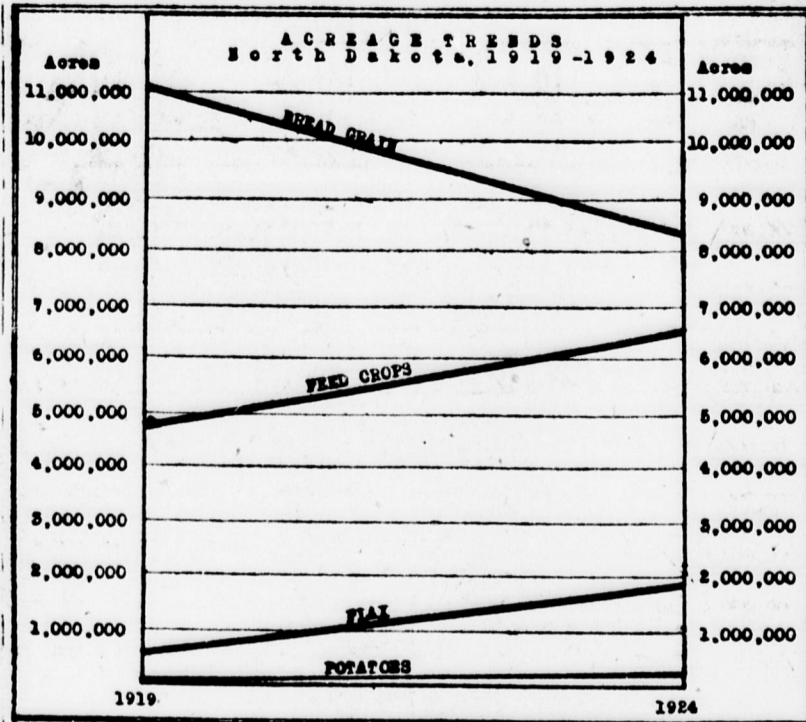

"During the period we have been discussing, the acreage of corn in North Dakota has increased 783,000; oats, 349,000; barley, 439,000, and tame hay, 215,000," President Coulter declared. "This makes a total increase in acreage of feed crops of 1,786,000, accounting for two-thirds of the bread grain acreage reduction."

"Meanwhile flax production has been made profitable in North Dakota thru the production of wilt resistant varieties of seed by the Agricultural college and control of the weed problem thru crop rotation. As a result, the acreage devoted to this profitable crop has increased 1,275,000 during the five-year period."

Increase in Flax

"The increase in flax, potatoes and feed crops more than makes up the deficit caused by the reduction in wheat and rye, and the acreages of wild hay, wild pasture, summer fallow, alfalfa and other miscellaneous items of low productivity have been reduced in the five-year period to make room for part of the increase in the above-mentioned crops."

North Dakota has by far the best opportunity of any state in the union to develop its livestock industry, is the opinion of President Coulter. "New England has a great livestock industry, though very little corn is produced there," he declares. "Concentrates and hay are the mainstays for feed there. Wisconsin has little corn and depends mostly on tame hay to support its livestock industry. Illinois and Iowa are great corn

Progress of agriculture in North Dakota from bread grain production toward diversified farming and livestock production is indicated by the above graph.

In 1919 North Dakota grew 9,098,000 acres of wheat and 2,037,000 acres of rye, or a total of 11,135,000 acres of bread grains. The 1924 acreage in North Dakota is 7,436,000 of wheat and 966,000 of rye, a combined acreage of 8,402,000. This is a reduction for the five-year period of 2,733,000 acres of bread grain crops.

During the same period, the acreage of feed crops—corn, barley, oats and tame hay—has increased from 4,310,000 to 6,602,000, an increase of 2,292,000 acres. As the figure shows, flax and potatoes have also increased considerably in acreage during this period.

states and corn constitutes the bulk of the feed.

"What can we produce in North Dakota to feed our livestock? We are rapidly increasing our flax acreage, making available large quantities of one of the most valuable of concentrated feeds, flaxseed meal. Our acreage of alfalfa and clover is growing by leaps and bounds. We are developing corn much faster than Wisconsin and will soon pass that state in corn acreage."

"In short, we can produce the concentrates that are the mainstay in New England, the tame hay that supports the livestock of Wisconsin, and the corn that makes possible maintenance of the livestock industry in Illinois and Iowa."

"North Dakota can produce the best balanced ration for livestock of any state in the union."

RAPID GROWTH IS SHOWN BY GRAIN CROPS

Weather During the Last Week Has Been Favorable, Says Grain Review

The Van Dusen Harrington Company, of Minneapolis, in its weekly market report, says:

"The grain crops of the Northwest have shown rapid growth during the past week, the weather has been favorable, with cool nights and seasonable temperatures during the day."

"There are several large districts in Northern South Dakota that were greatly in need of moisture, as the grain was showing the effect of dry weather. Fortunately, there have been fine rains which will greatly improve the crops."

"We are now at the period of crop development where any damage becomes apparent. Although there has been considerable moisture throughout the growing season the grain, poorly farmed, or on light soil, now shows the effect of dry weather. There are small local areas where the crops have been hurt to some extent."

"In Eastern Montana conditions are very good. In the Western two-thirds of the state some of the crops have been damaged by the dry weather. This is especially true of the late sown wheat, while the winter wheat is much better."

"The infection by black rust this season is very light and its slow development would indicate only slight damage. There have also been some severe hail storms in Central part of North Dakota, that have hurt some of the crops."

"Oats and barley are the best in several years. The fields generally, have a heavy stand. Barley is filling exceptionally well in Minnesota, North and South Dakota. In Montana the barley shows damage. Some early barley has been cut and within a week harvesting of this crop will be getting general in the Southern districts."

"Corn has shown a steady improvement during the past two weeks, but is still from ten days to two weeks late. The recent rains, with warmer weather, have made the growing conditions almost ideal."

"The flax crop varies considerably in the different localities. In some places the crop is uniformly good, while in others it varies from a thin stand to an exceptionally heavy one, all depending upon the growing conditions after seeding. With the great increase in acreage, however, the Northwest will probably raise one of the largest flax crops in its history, barring early frosts."

"Rye harvest is now in progress. The crop is thin in places but mostly well filled and of good quality."

"There is a greatly improved feeling of optimism throughout the farming communities of the Northwest. This is due to the very good crop prospects at the present time and we believe that some fine yields of wheat, barley and oats will be shown."

A Story Without Words

DARING YOUTH - RUC

English Bird Sanctuary

On the outskirts of London, and within half an hour's journey from the city, is one of the most beautiful bits of woodland in England. Few Americans, or Londoners, either, have ever visited this place, or even know of its existence. It is a bird sanctuary, a veritable land of song, which is carefully fenced and guarded by keepers night and day, and where every kind of British bird lives and nests unmolested. The wood lies in the Brent valley and was bought for London two years ago and established as a permanent memorial to Gilbert White, the author of the "History of Selborne," by the Shelbourne society.

The sanctuary, however, has been in existence just 21 years, and in its 19 acres, in the bosom of its many oak trees and the coppices of hazel, ows, willow warblers, bluebirds, goldfinches, nightingales, blackcaps and many other birds may be seen.

N. P. TO PROVIDE INSURANCE FOR ITS EMPLOYEES

Plan to Write Largest Insurance Policy in Northwest Is Announced

PLAN IS EXPLAINED

St. Paul, Minn., July 26.—Charles Donnelly, president of the Northern Pacific Railway, today announced that at a meeting of the board of directors held on July 16, 1924, approval was given to a plan under which the 30,000 workers on the Northern Pacific will be given insurance protection. The statement follows:

"All employees in the service of the railway company six months or more will be covered by a certain amount of free life and total disability insurance, the premiums on which will be paid by the railway company without any expense whatsoever to the employees. In addition the railway company will afford to employees in service one year or more the opportunity to purchase additional group life insurance at rates far below the cost of ordinary individual life insurance by assuming part of the premium on such additional insurance."

"The whole plan will become effective if and when 75 percent of the eligible employees have subscribed to it as requested by the law governing group insurance. It has been worked out in line with the company policy of seeking to improve the position of its employees and of making it easier for them to make provision for those dependent upon them."

"This plan will not disturb either the hospital service or the Northern Pacific Beneficial association or the pension system of the railway company, but will supplement them so that when the insurance becomes effective employees will have available additional protection against adversity. Under the proposed plan each employee will get $250.00 life insurance for premium of $1.00 per month, or full by the railway company and at the expiration of one year's premium this amount of free insurance will be increased to $500.00, continuing at that figure thereafter as long as the employee is in service. In addition to this free life insurance, employees who have been in continuous service one year or more may purchase additional life insurance in varying amounts on what is known as the contributory plan. The cost of this additional insurance part is paid by the railway company and part by the employee."

The cost to the employee per $1000.00 of this additional insurance will range some where between 70 cents and 80 cents per month. An employee leaving the service permanently for any reason may obtain from the insurance company writing the policy at the commercial rates applicable to his age at the time he leaves the service and without medical examination, the amount of insurance carried for him under this plan including the $250.00 of free insurance paid for wholly by the Northern Pacific Railway Company."

"The insurance is payable in full to the beneficiary in case of death or if the employee becomes totally disabled before he reaches the age of 60 years it will be paid to him in installments."

Amount of Insurance

"The amount of insurance covered by this single plan will be approximately $50,000,000.00. It will be the largest single policy ever written in the northwest, and the third largest policy ever written on employees of American railroads being exceeded only by the policies of the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific."

"This insurance is bought by the railway company in wholesale amount and at a wholesale price," said Mr. Donnelly. "The company's only purpose in buying it is to make it available to employees at rates much less than cost; the employee is not required to stop his brotherhood insurance or any other insurance. Our plan is simply to provide easy insurance for all employees who wish it, including those who, because of age or ill health are not able to get it in any other way. It is prompted by the realization which is everywhere deepening of the dependence upon the other of employer and employee."

"No railway company in America has a body of employees more efficient or faithful or loyal than that of the Northern Pacific and it is deeply gratifying to the management to be able to extend to them this evidence of the company's appreciation. The plan will be submitted to them within the next few weeks."

ABANDON BABY, TOO COSTLY

Couple, However, Admit They Were Buying Automobile

St. Paul, July 26.—Charged with abandonment of their baby, 17-year-old Neva Epton and Clarence Epton, 19 years old, formerly of Waltham, N. D., last night were lodged in the city jail because they said, "they couldn't support the child."

The young couple, school day sweethearts in Waltham, "didn't know it was against the law to leave the baby on the doorstep" and even last night little realized the seriousness of the charge.

"We were both too young to know that we were doing wrong," was the explanation given by Clarence and Neva.

"It wasn't because I didn't want my baby," Neva said. "We just felt that someone else could give it more than we could afford. I thought we had to leave the baby for I felt that I must work as soon as I was strong enough. If we had kept the baby I would have had to stay at home."

The baby, born July 5, was abandoned by the couple on a doorstep at a St. Paul home July 18. Police said that although the Eptons declared they could not support the youngster, they were buying an automobile on the installment plan.

Waltham, N. D., July 26.—Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Epton, reported arrested in St. Paul for the abandonment of their baby, are well known here, having resided in Waltham since they were married. They lived until a year ago, when they went to Minneapolis.

Epton is the son of the proprietor of a local meat market, and Mrs. Epton is the daughter of C. O. Harvey, a farmer living near Epton. They were regarded in high esteem and press dispatches were the first intimation received by their parents of their arrest.

Somali Fond of Song

Musical instruments—even the tontoon, so dear to the heart of most African natives—are unknown to the Somali, who, none the less, takes great pleasure in singing and dancing. Their songs are not by any means casual chants, but have special significance, and are applicable to certain occasions. For example, there is a "Song of Thanksgiving for the finding of water, after a long journey," and songs for the loading and unloading of caravans, but most of their music is of a religious nature; and there is a "Song of Burial" sung when the 20-foot mound is raised above the remains of a chief and fenced around with a strong palisade of logs placed transversely between stout posts. Of all their dances the Somali place the war dance first.

Miss Martha's Last Will

By GEORGE MUNSON

When Jim Maine went after anything he went after it tooth and nail. That was the spirit in which he went after Miss Martha Crowe's property.

Martha Crowe had had the reputation of a miser. In addition to the cottage in which she and Miss Annie, her niece by marriage, dwelled, she had nine thousand dollars in the bank. And the will that old Maine produced gave him everything except the cottage.

It was Annie's engagement to Tom Claffin that provoked the old woman's rage. Annie was to get only "Not one penny of my money will you get, you ungrateful child, if you leave me in my old age."

"But, aunt, we want you to make your home with us," protested the girl.

That only fanned the old woman's wrath. She sent for Maine. He was her only friend. He was an elder in some primitive tabernacle, and Miss Martha belonged to it.

"You'd best stay with your aunt and give that Claffin fellow the shake," leered old Jim, the richest man in the village.

The girl had hoped to escape into a larger world with her marriage to Tom.

The week following, her aunt died suddenly in the midst of one of those scolding fits that made the girl's life gall and wormwood. And then Tom came and put his arms around Annie and told her that she was his.

But Tom was as poor as a church mouse, and marriage would have been out of the question but for the money.

Before Tom Claffin had decided Jim Maine produced a will written by the old woman a month before she died, and signed by witnesses. It left all Miss Martha's money to him, stating that, on account of her ingratitude, Annie was to get only the cottage. That was worth two or three thousand—but it was only a small share in the comfortable estate.

Tom came to Annie. "That will be a forgery, my dear," he said. "Those witnesses are men who owe Maine money. We shall fight it tooth and nail."

The case came up before the surrogate's court. Maine had deeded it to himself. Tom, but the young lawyer said that the man was in frenzy of fear. Still, he could not keep his fingers off the nine thousand dollars.

On the day before the trial the young lawyer received a visit from a fellow lawyer in the next town. "I heard about your case, Claffin," he said. "I think this puts a new light on the transaction, doesn't it?" And he threw a document upon the table. "Tom asked me to write it. It was another will of Miss Martha's."

"She made that about a month ago," said the visitor. "Come over to Stapleton to do it, I guess, so that nobody in this town should know. Of course, it antedates the will you are fighting over, but—"

Claffin sat long in thought that evening.

"Tom, won't you withdraw at the last moment?" pleaded Annie in court the next morning. "Dear, we have the cottage—and, after all, that will may be genuine."

Tom said nothing but clasped her hand in his. And Annie resigned herself to her lover's will in the matter.

When the case was called, however, he amazed the court and spectators by saying:

"We do not accept this will as genuine. Your Honor, but, in deference to the wishes of my client we are willing to accept the sworn statement of Mr. Maine and his witnesses to the effect that the will is genuine, and to withdraw."

And the will was admitted to probate.

Maine was flushed with triumph. He was not the man to let well enough alone. The revulsion from his fears of prison proved too strong for his good sense. He approached Tom in the courtroom, after the court had adjourned.

"Well, I guess you did the wise thing in withdrawing," said Tom. "You'd have lost your case, and I'd have had you driven out of town, too. It takes a big man to cross my will."

"I hope you'll enjoy your property," said Tom. "But why didn't you take the cottage, too, while you were about it? You threw away two or three thousand dollars there. And you might just as well have had it if you had had the nerve."

"What do you mean?" belittled Maine triumphantly.

"I mean," said Tom, thrusting his face forward and looking the other squarely in the eye, "that if you hadn't been a thief and a rogue you would have got everything. Here is Miss Crowe's will, and it leaves you everything, cottage included."

He thrust the document under Jim Maine's face.

"It does, does it?" roared Maine. "Then I'll have it."

"No, you won't," answered Claffin. "This will was executed three days before the forged one that has been admitted to probate."

MARKET NEWS

HOG VALUES ARE BOOSTED DURING WEEK

Teach to Near the High Price
Record of Last Season in Trading

So. St. Paul, July 26. (By the A. S. P. Co.)—Hog values have been steadily in the rise since last Friday, current prices averaging around $1.50 to $1.25 higher for the week and reaching within 15 cents of last year's peak prices, says the weekly review of the United States Department of Agriculture today.

Some of the underlying factors behind this advance have been decreased supplies coupled with an unusual demand from all sources, and probably to the prospect of full receipts for the coming fall market.

Fed cattle gained in sympathy with hog values, advancing 25 cents or more. Grassers eased off about the same extent, the decline extending to practically all of the stocker and feeder type as well. Dull and practically lifeless market for pressed lambs were reflected in the live trade, values on beef dropping virtually every day with current prices averaging fully $1.00 to $1.25 below a week ago.

Best cattle at the close was 66 head of 833 pound yearlings at $7.75. Grassers mostly $6.50 to $7.50. Stockers mostly $5.50 to $7.00. Shearstock closed, $3.25 to $3.50. Canners and cutters $2.25 to $3.00. Bologna hogs $3.75 to $4.25. Calf calves steady, practical top $4.00. Stockers and feeders $4.00 to $5.75. Interior light weight sort down to $5.00.

Best lambs closed $11.25 to $11.50. Fat lambs $6.00 to $6.50. Heavies mostly $6.00. Sheep held steady. Livestock receipts today: Cattle, 1,000; Hogs, 800; Sheep, none.

DECREASES IN TAXES OF SOME COUNTIES SEEN

Representative of Large Tax-paying Body Appears Before Board This Year

CUTS HELD NECESSARY

Taxpayers Generally Don't Appear Before Boards to Ask Cuts, However

A large number of the counties in western North Dakota are cutting expenses for the ensuing year to a figure below that of the previous year, and a decrease is necessary to give the farmer the encouragement and assistance necessary to keep the expected come-back, according to F. W. Pusch, of the tax department of the Northern Pacific, who is visiting these counties as the representative of taxpayers.

The decreases are being made, however, by the county boards generally without any requests expressed at the budget hearings, or assistance from business men, farmers or other taxpayers, according to Mr. Pusch, who has been the sole representative of a taxpayer in most counties. The saving that may be made from suggestions advanced by his long study of the tax situation, however, are greater to the general public than the Northern Pacific Railway, which he represents.

Mr. Pusch believes it is especially important to have low levies made this year. With good crops many farmers who are back in taxes will pay them. If the levies are increased there may be just enough difference to make it impossible for him to do so, he said.

The railroad, he declared, is more interested in having farmers on the land than the cut in taxes to benefit it.

West of River High Many counties west of the river are still high in their levies, Mr. Pusch found. Of 10 counties examined west of the Missouri, the total annual charge for interest and sinking funds is $258,000, while in eight counties east of the river the total charge is but $87,000. Yet, his examination showed, levies west of the river for general expenses generally are higher in proportion to counties east of the river, some of which have no bond issues.

There are many ways to cut expenses without impairing the county government, he believes. Roads are one. In some counties graded roads have been built where they are seldom used. One commissioner informed him of a graded road in this county on which he said a wheel had not turned for six months. Demands of people of one district for roads, believing some other district has been getting an advantage, has caused useless expense, he said. He urges that road expense be segregated by commissioners' district "so any such argument may be answered."

Some Net Levies

Some of the net levies, as published in budgets or finally approved, in this territory follow: Emmet county $20,000, excluding unorganized road districts; Grant $115,000; Morton $138,000; Oliver $32,525; McLean $94,956; Wells $131,813; Burleigh $153,348. Mr. Pusch expected to ask the Morton county board today for reductions, to later appear before the Wells county board. The Northern Pacific operates in 32 counties. Last year, Mr. Pusch said, he appeared before five boards and got cuts in levies totalling $191,000, and in these five counties he was the only taxpayer present to ask for economy. Others wanted some special appropriation. The Northern Pacific benefited by about one-fifth of this amount, said general taxpayers about four-fifths, he said.

Pair Held To District Court For Manslaughter

Jamestown, N. D., July 26.—Frank and Cora Funk were ordered held to the district court to answer to the charge of manslaughter by Justice J. A. Murphy on their preliminary in his court Friday. Mrs. Funk was released on her own recognizance but bonds in the amount of $3,000 were demanded of Mr. Funk who was unable to furnish satisfactory bonds to that amount. The principal witness for the state, Mel Crow, was also remanded to jail being unable to furnish bonds in the amount of $1,000 asked to guarantee his appearance for the trial in district court.

Greek Hair Styles

Paris, July 26.—Parisian women are replacing shingled hair with a sort of Greek headpiece, which consists of a band around the head, forcing all the hair back. The ears are tucked behind or left outside the band. In this way long hair can be grown again to replace the now unpopular shingle bob.

T. S. FILMS POPULAR

London, July 26.—Popularity and popularity of American films have dealt a death blow to English-made movies within the last six months. English theater owners are buying the cheaper and better American films and the British producers are reported to be on the verge of bankruptcy.

CHARGES BIG THEFT

Yonkersville, W. Va., July 26.—When Earl Shreve left home recently to take a look at the young orchard he set out last fall he found it had completely disappeared. Now he charges that Lindsay Lee stole the whole orchard and transplanted it. It is the first case of this sort that ever has been brought into a local court.

ELK BOTHER FARMERS

Wenatchee, Wash., July 26.—Hungry elk emerging from the foothills and feasting on haystacks in the vicinity of Okanogan have caused farmers to organize to combat them. The elk herds have been driven back by the firing of blank shells over their heads, but with the return of hunger the animals revisit the farm lands.

SERENADE SNAKES

London, July 26.—Snakes were unresponsive to the music of a jazz band that was imported into the London Zoological Gardens recently in the interests of science. Among the reptiles, only a few of the lizards and the Chinese alligator so much as moved when the band began to play.

GIRLS OWN CITY TODAY

Special Program For Girls Draws Many Out of Town People

With over 200 out of town people already registered at 2 o'clock, and the large numbers just beginning to arrive, Girl's Day in Bismarck is proving a success. This is the day when mere man has to retire to the background, while the girls carry off the honors in contests especially arranged for them, and prizes for entries that no man could possibly make anyway. Over 50 answers have been received in the word contest, which closed July 21; no awards will be made until late today, however.

On display at the Business and Professional Women's club rooms are a large number of articles entered for the prizes offered for home cooking and sewing; beautifully made, crocheted, knitted, embroidered and cross stitched, table runners, yokes, buffet sets, bureau scarfs, aprons, pillow slips, as well as aprons and house dresses have been entered. Bread, cake, candy, butter, and cream exhibits have also been brought in, all these being made by girls from 12 to 17 years of age, unassisted by any other person.

This afternoon a special program of readings, and musical numbers is being provided for the girls and women at the club rooms. At 1:30, the St. Mary's band of 25 pieces gave a concert on the street, and all afternoon a clown band furnished music.

A trip through the Capitol and State Historical building was another feature enjoyed by the girls this afternoon, and which was arranged by the B. and P. W. club.

The swimming pool, with bathing suits furnished by the city, vied in popularity with the free movies, although neither was in danger of neglect.

Probably the event creating the most interest was the automobile driving contest for girls, taking place in front of the postoffice.

Tonight all the girls and their friends are invited to attend the pavement dance, to be held on Third street between Main and Broadway, with the Wildwood orchestra furnishing the music.

Announcements of awards in the contests cannot be made until late today or Monday, according to Mrs. George Harris, who is in charge of the events for the day, for the Business and Professional Women's clubs. The Girls Day is under the general charge of the Bismarck Advertising club, of which F. E. Young is president. J. J. MacLeod is supervising the various contests for the day.

Dear Sir:

On behalf of the Western Association of Rolled Steel Consumers, I wish to thank you for the great aid rendered by you in the fight upon "Pittsburgh Plus" against which vicious steel price-fixing practice the Federal Trade Commission has just handed down a sweeping decision.

This decision is of momentous importance to all classes of the people. To the farmers especially, it assures lower prices for farm implements, and to all consumers it assures lower costs of steel and steel products, and lessens public expense, because steel plays an important part in public building and roadway construction.

The decision also gives to every community in the country its industrial rights which should accrue to it from geographical location, and this means that there will be a broadening of industry and greater prosperity for all parts of the country. Instead of the restriction of prosperity in the steel industry to the city of Pittsburgh and industrial towns in its vicinity.

Unless this decision is appealed by the steel mills, it will be final, and "Pittsburgh Plus" will be definitely a thing of the past. We do not believe the mills will ask the U. S. courts to overturn the decision for the newspapers of the country have been almost a unit against the practice, and a continued fight for it by the steel mills would, in all probability, alienate public good will and invite drastic regulation of the industry by the government. To this result you have contributed in an important way, and for this we again wish to thank you earnestly.

Very truly yours,

SAYS MONTANA ALSO TO HAVE BUMPER CROP

R. C. Battey Says Wheat Crop Will Be the Greatest in History of State

"Montana will produce 64 million bushels of wheat, the greatest crop in its history," said R. C. Battey of Billings, former Bismarck man who is now manager of the Billings branch of the International Harvester company, today. Mr. Battey spent a few hours here enroute home.

Mr. Battey is here in conference with International Harvester officials following a meeting at Minot. He expressed himself as impressed with the outlook for a crop in this state.

"The corn is looking fine in our state too," said Mr. Battey. "Last year we produced only nine million bushels, but this year with a doubled acreage we should get fifteen million. Montana is going more and more into diversification."

Mr. Battey said that he was glad Burleigh county commissioners had voted to levy $11,000 for a fair. Billings supports through county aid the Midland Empire Fair.

"Last year we had an attendance of 55,000 and this year we expect 75,000," said Mr. Battey. "We find that the fair aids agriculture and is a great help in promoting our sections of the state."

Mr. Battey for years was manager of the Bismarck branch of the International Harvester company and served on the city commission. He took a leading part in city affairs and was actively identified with the paving program, the establishment of the public library and was on the city commission when the franchise for the gas plant was granted. He has followed Bismarck's growth with a great deal of interest and is enthusiastic for business prospects over the entire Northwest this fall.

MARKET NEWS

HOG VALUES ARE BOOSTED DURING WEEK

Reach to Near the High Price Record of Last Season in Trading

St. Paul, July 26. (By the A. P.)—Hog values have been steadily on the rise since last Friday, current prices averaging around $10.00 to $12.25 higher for the week and reaching within 15 cents of last year's peak prices, says the weekly review of the United States Department of Agriculture today.

Some of the underlying factors behind this advance have been decreased supplies coupled with an unusual demand from all sources, due probably to the prospect of decreased receipts for the coming fall market.

Fed cattle gained in sympathy with hog values, advancing 25 cents or more. Grassers eased off about the same extent, the decline extending to practically all of the stocker and feeder type as well. Dull and practically lifeless market for dressed lambs were reflected in the live trade, values on beef dropping virtually every day with current prices averaging fully $1.00 to $1.25 below a week ago.

Best cattle at the close was 66 head of 833 pound yearlings at $9.75. Grassers mostly $6.50 to $7.50. Grassers mostly $5.50 to $7.00. She-stocks closed, $3.50 to $6.00. Mail Fraud Is Charged Rugsy Man Held By U. S.

Devils Lake, N. D., July 26.—Charged with using the mails to defraud, Evan Evanson of Rugsy is held at the Ramsey county jail at Devils Lake, awaiting the arrival of Deputy United States Marshal James Collins of Fargo, who will bring Evanson to Fargo to face the charges.

In the complaint received by the marshal's office, Evanson is alleged to have written a letter to Dr. E. C. Stone of Minot in which Evanson said that Dr. Stone was guilty of misconduct with a woman named in the letter and that unless Dr. Stone mailed $1,000 by return mail, Evanson would advise authorities to prosecute.

Stone said he had received a similar letter prior to this to which he paid no attention but when the second letter arrived he advised postal authorities, who investigated and made the arrest.

Evanson is alleged to have mailed the letter at the railway post-office on the Soo line at Kenmare, July 15. The complaint was sworn out by Harry E. Schriver, a post-inspector, and the warrant was issued by W. S. Lowry, United States inspector at Devils Lake.

The warrant was approved on its arrival at Fargo by Seth Richardson, United States district attorney.

The principal witness for the state, Mel Crow, was also remanded to jail being unable to furnish bonds in the amount of $1,000 asked to guarantee his appearance for the trial in district court.

The testimony upon which the defendants were held was to the effect that on May 1st they were engaged in making a "batch of moonshine" in the farm house occupied by the witness Mel Crow and that in taking the boiler still from the stove while Mrs. Funk and Mel Crow were both in the room, Funk dropped it. In striking the floor the contents of the boiler were spashed out thru the hole in the top, where the coil had been attached, and flooded across the floor to where the Funk baby was sitting thereby scalding it to such an extent that it died during the night from the effects. The evidence shows that the child was brot into Jamestown and to the Funk home here before medical attention was given it.

Neither of the defendants took the stand in the preliminary hearing.

WHEAT GROWER MAKES REMARKABLE PROGRESS IN GETTING HIMSELF OUT OF DIFFICULTIES OF WAR

Increase in Diversification in North Dakota Plainly Shown by Graph of the North Dakota Agricultural College — Reduction in Wheat Acreage Has Affected the Price.

Fargo, N. D., July 26.—The wheat grower, with plenty of encouragement from outsiders, got himself into a hole during the war.

The wheat grower, with little help from outsiders, has climbed out of the hole since then. He has done this by readjusting production approximately to domestic consumption requirements.

This is the belief of President John Lee Coulter, of the North Dakota Agricultural college.

This adjustment has been a more important factor in bringing wheat prices up from the low level of last winter than the Canadian drought and the world situation, he declares.

By practicing the program advocated by the Agricultural college for accelerated diversification and reduced wheat acreage, farmers of North Dakota and of the spring wheat area have brought about a large part of the wheat acreage reduction, and the consequent higher prices according to President Coulter.

The large increases in the prices of wheat in the United States began with the publication June 10 of official reports showing the domestic production for 1924 to be about equal to consumption requirements. Doctor Coulter declares, "This situation reconstituted the tariff, hitherto not fully effective because of the large exportable surpluses in the United States, and the price of wheat rapidly rose from 20 to 25 cents per bushel, or from about 90 cents per bushel to $1.20 per bushel."

RECENT INCREASES

"Increases of the past few weeks of from 10 to 15 cents per bushel are largely attributed to the Canadian drought and the indicated world shortage of wheat. From now on the price will depend upon the development of Russia and other damage factors in the United States, and upon the changes which may take place in the status of the wheat crop in Canada and other foreign countries."

"Consumption of wheat per capita in the United States is about 6.1 bushels. Estimated population for January 1, 1925, is 113,000,000, making the consumption requirements for the 1924 wheat crop about 690,000,000 bushels. The latest and largest official estimate of the wheat crop for the United States is 740,000,000 bushels, leaving a possible surplus of 50,000,000 bushels. This balance may be accounted for by the normal export of each year of certain varieties of soft and durum wheat and by low quality wheat used for feed. The present high prices for corn increase the possibility of profitable feeding of low quality wheat."

"From the 1919 wheat crop in the United States, 366,000,000 bushels were exported, as compared with the present estimated possibility of 50,000,000 bushels this year."

"The present favorable position of the American wheat grower is the product of his own progress toward adjustment of acreage to domestic consumption. In 1919 the winter wheat acreage was 50,494,000, and in 1924 38,998,000, a reduction of 13,596,000 acres. For the same years the spring wheat acreage was 25,200,000 and 16,920,000 respectively, or a reduction of 8,280,000 acres, making a total reduction of 21,876,000 acres."

Part N. D. Has Played

"What part has North Dakota played in this readjustment?" the president was asked.

"Farmers of North Dakota have done more than their share in bringing about this change," he replied.

"In 1919 North Dakota farmers grew 9,098,000 acres of wheat. This year the acreage is reduced to 7,436,000. Rye, another bread grain which competes to a certain extent with wheat, occupied 2,037,000 acres in this state in 1919 and only 966,000 acres this year. This makes a total reduction in acreage of bread grain crops during the five years of 2,733,000 acres, or approximately a cut of 25 per cent."

The extra acreage which was devoted to bread grains is now being used for the production of feed crops to care for North Dakota's growing livestock industry, and to the production of flax and potatoes, according to statistics compiled by Mr. Coulter from the United States department of agriculture yearbooks.

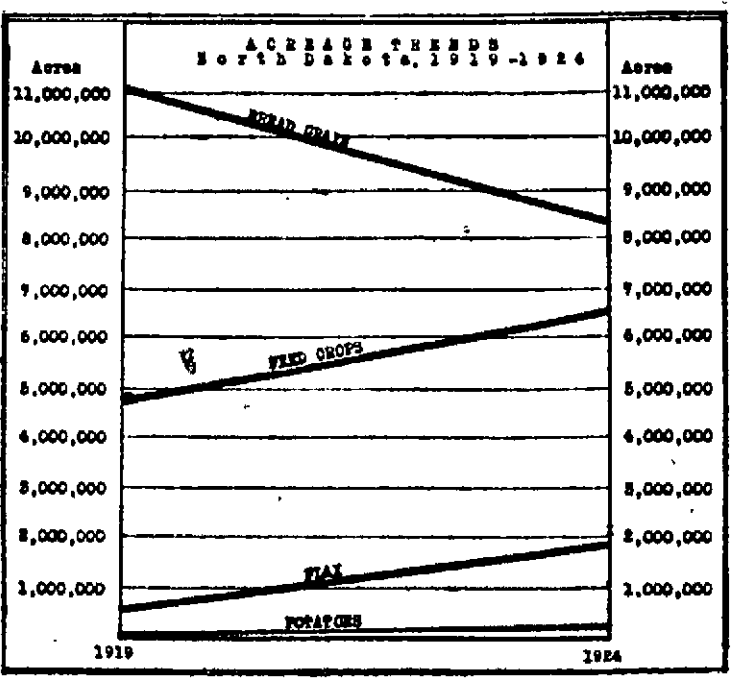

"During the period we have been discussing, the acreage of corn in North Dakota has increased 785,000; oats, 349,000; barley, 439,000, and timothy, 215,000," President Coulter declared. "This makes a total increase in acreage of feed crops of 1,792,000, accounting for two-thirds of the bread grain acreage reduction."

"Meanwhile flax production has been made profitable in North Dakota when the production of wheat resistant varieties of seed by the Agricultural college and control of the weed problem thru crop rotation. As a result, the acreage devoted to this profitable crop has increased 1,275,000 during the five-year period."

Increase in Flax

"The increase in flax, potatoes and feed crops more than makes up the deficit caused by the reduction in wheat and rye, and the acreages of wild hay, wild pasture, summer fallow, alfalfa and other miscellaneous items of low productivity have been reduced in the five-year period to make room for part of the increase in the above-mentioned crops."

North Dakota has by far the best opportunity of any state in the union to develop its livestock industry. It is the opinion of President Coulter: "New England has a great livestock industry, though very little corn is produced there," he declares. "Concentrates and hay are the mainstays for feed there. Wisconsin has little corn and depends mostly on tame hay to support its livestock industry. Illinois and Iowa are great corn

Progress of agriculture in North Dakota from bread grain production toward diversified farming and livestock production is indicated by the above graph.

In 1919 North Dakota grew 9,098,000 acres of wheat and 2,037,000 acres of rye, or a total of 11,135,000 acres of bread grains. The 1924 acreage in North Dakota is 7,436,000 of wheat and 966,000 of rye, a combined acreage of 8,402,000. This is a reduction for the five-year period of 2,733,000 acres of bread grain crops.

During the same period, the acreage of feed crops—corn, barley, oats and timothy has increased from 4,810,000 to 6,002,000, an increase of 1,192,000 acres. As the figure shows, flax and potatoes have also increased considerably in acreage during this period.

states and corn constitutes the bulk of the feed.

"What can we produce in North Dakota to feed our livestock? We are rapidly increasing our flax acreage, making available large quantities of one of the most valuable of concentrated feeds, flaxseed meal. Our acreage of alfalfa and clover is growing by leaps and bounds. We are developing corn much faster than Wisconsin and will soon pass that state in corn acreage."

"In short, we can produce the concentrates that are the mainstay in New England, the tame hay that supports the livestock of Wisconsin, and the corn that makes possible maintenance of the livestock industry in Illinois and Iowa."

North Dakota can produce the best balanced ration for livestock of any state in the union."

RAPID GROWTH IS SHOWN BY GRAIN CROPS

Weather During the Last Week Has Been Favorable. Says Grain Review

The Van Dusen Harrington Company, of Minneapolis, in its weekly market report, says:

"The grain crops of the Northwest have shown rapid growth during the past week, the weather has been favorable, with cool nights and seasonable temperatures during the day."

"There are several large districts in Northern South Dakota and Southern North Dakota that were greatly in need of moisture, as the grain was showing the effect of dry weather. Fortunately, there have been fine rains which will greatly improve the crops."

"We are now at the period of crop development where any damage becomes apparent. Although there has been considerable moisture throughout the growing season the grain, poorly farmed, or on light soil, now shows the effect of dry weather. There are small local areas where the crops have been hurt to some extent."

"In Eastern Montana conditions are very good. In the Western two-thirds of the state some of the crops have been damaged by the

A Story Without Words

N. P. TO PROVIDE INSURANCE FOR ITS EMPLOYEES

Plan to Write Largest Insurance Policy in Northwest Is Announced

PLAN IS EXPLAINED

St. Paul, Minn., July 26.—Charles Donnelly, president of the Northern Pacific Railway, today announced that at a meeting of the board of directors held on July 10, 1924, approval was given to a plan under which the 30,000 workers on the Northern Pacific will be given insurance protection. The statement follows:

"All employees in the service of the railway company six months or more will be covered by a certain amount of free life and total disability insurance, the premiums on which will be paid by the railway company without any expense whatever to the employees."

In addition the railway company will afford to employees in service one year or more the opportunity to purchase additional group life insurance at rates far below the cost of ordinary individual life insurance by assuming part of the premium on such additional insurance.

"The whole plan will become effective if and when 75 per cent of the eligible employees have subscribed to it as requested by the low governing group insurance. It has been worked out in line with the company policy of seeking to improve the position of its employees and of making it easier for them to make provision for those dependent upon them."

"This plan will not disturb either the hospital service or the Northern Pacific Beneficial association or the pension system of the railway company, but will supplement them so that when the insurance becomes effective employees will have available additional protection against adversity. Under the proposed plan each employee will get $250.00 life insurance the premium on which will be paid for in full by the railway company and at the expiration on one year's premium this amount of free insurance will be increased to $500.00, continuing at that figure thereafter as long as the employee is in service; in addition to this free life insurance, employees who have been in continuous service for one year or more may purchase additional life insurance in varying amounts on what is known as the contributory plan. The cost of this additional insurance part is paid by the railway company and part by the employee."

The cost to the employee per $1000.00 of this additional insurance will range some where between 70 cents and 80 cents per month. An employee leaving the service permanently for any cause may obtain from the insurance company writing the policy at the commercial rates applicable to his age at the time he leaves the service and without medical examination, the amount of insurance carried for him under this plan including the $250.00 or $500.00 insurance paid for wholly by the Northern Pacific Railway Company.

"The insurance is payable in full to the beneficiary in case of death or if the employee becomes totally disabled before he reaches the age of 60 years it will be paid to him in installments."

Amount of Insurance

"The amount of insurance covered by this single plan will be approximately $50,000,000.00. It will be the largest single policy ever written in the northwest, and the third largest policy ever written on employees of American railroads being exceeded only by the policies of the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific."

"This insurance is bought by the railway company in wholesale amount and at wholesale price," said Mr. Donnelly. "The company's only purpose in buying it is to make it available to employees at rates much less than cost; the employee is not required to stop his brotherhood insurance or any other insurance. Our aim is simply to provide easy insurance for all employees who wish it, including those who because of age or ill health are not able to get it in any other way. It is prompted by the realization which is everywhere deepening of the dependence one upon the other of employer and employee."

"No railway company in America has a body of employees more efficient or faithful or loyal than that of the Northern Pacific and it is deeply gratifying to the management to be able to extend to them this evidence of the company's appreciation. The plan will be submitted to them within the next few weeks."

English Bird Sanctuary

On the outskirts of London, and within half an hour's journey from the city, is one of the most beautiful bits of woodland in England. Few Americans or Londoners, either, have ever visited this place, or even know of its existence. It is a bird sanctuary, a veritable land of song, which is carefully fenced and guarded by keepers night and day, and where every kind of British bird lives and nests unmolested. The wood lies in the Brent valley and was bought for London two years ago and established as a permanent memorial to Gilbert White, the author of the "History of Selbourne," by the Selbourne society. The sanctuary, however, has been in existence just 21 years, and in its 19 acres, in the boughs of its many oak trees and the coppleces of hazel, willow, warblers, bluebirds, goldfinches, nightingales, blackcaps and many other birds may be seen.

ABANDON BABY, 'TOO COSTLY'

Couple, However, Admit They Were Buying Automobile

St. Paul, July 26.—Charged with abandonment of their baby, 17-year-old Neva Epton and Clarence Epton, 19 years old, formerly of Wallhalla, N. D., last night were lodged in the city jail because they said, "they couldn't support the child."

The young couple, school day sweethearts in Wallhalla, "didn't know it was against the law" to leave the baby on the doorstep—and even last night little realized the seriousness of the charge. "We were both too young to know that we were doing wrong," was the explanation given by Clarence and Neva.

"It wasn't because I didn't want my baby," Neva said. "We just felt that someone else could give it more than we could afford. I thought we had to leave the baby for I felt that I must work as soon as I was strong enough. If we had kept the baby I would have had to stay at home."

The baby, born July 5, was abandoned by the couple on a doorstep at a St. Paul home July 18. Police said that although the Eptons declared they could not support the youngster, they were buying an automobile on the installment plan.

COUPLE WELL KNOWN

Wallhalla, N. D., July 26.—Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Epton, reported arrested in St. Paul for the abandonment of their baby, are well known here, having resided in Wallhalla during the greater part of their lives until a year ago, when they went to Minneapolis.

Epton is the son of the proprietor of a local meat market, and Mrs. Epton is the daughter of C. O. Harvey, a farmer living near town. Both were regarded in high esteem and press dispatches were the first intimation received by their parents of their arrest.

Somali Fond of Song

Musical instruments—even the tom-tom, so dear to the heart of most African natives—are unknown to the Somali, who, none the less, takes great pleasure in singing and dancing. Their songs are not by any means casual chants, but have special significance, and are applicable to certain occasions. For example, there is a "Song of Thanksgiving" for the finding of water, after a long journey, and songs for the loading and unloading of caravans, but most of their music is of a religious nature; and there is a "Song of Burial," sung when the remains of a chief and fenced around with a strong palisade of logs placed transversely between stout posts. Of all their dances the Somali place the war dance first.

CONSUL GENERAL

Miss Martha's Last Will

By GEORGE MUNSON

When Jim Maine went after anything he went after it tooth and nail. That was the spirit in which he went after Miss Martha Crowe's property.

Martha Crowe had had the reputation of a miser. In addition to the cottage in which she and Miss Annie, her niece by marriage, dwelled, she had nine thousand dollars in the bank. And the will that old Maine produced gave him everything except the cottage.

It was Annie's engagement to Tom Claflin that provoked the old woman's rage. When the miserly old woman heard of it she declared: "Not one penny of my money will you get, you ungrateful child, if you leave me in my old age."

"But, aunt, we want you to make your home with us," protested the girl.

That only fanned the old woman's wrath. She sent for Maine. He was her only friend. He was an elder in some primitive tabernacle, and Miss Martha belonged to it.

"You'd best stay with your aunt and give that Claflin fellow the shake," leered old Jim, the richest man in the village.

The girl had hoped to escape into a larger world with her marriage to Tom.

The week following, her aunt died suddenly in the midst of one of those scolding fits that made the girl's life gall and wormwood. And then Tom came and put his arms around Annie and told her that she was his.

But Tom was as poor as a church mouse, and marriage would have been out of the question but for the money.

Before Tom Claflin had decided Jim Maine produced a will written by the old woman a month before she died, and signed by witnesses. It left all Miss Martha's money to him, stating that, on account of her ingratitude, Annie was to get only the cottage. That was worth two or three thousand—but it was only a small share in the comfortable estate.

Tom came to Annie. "That will be a forgery, my dear," he said. "Those witnesses are men who owe Maine money. We shall fight it tooth and nail."

The case came up before the surrogate's court. Maine had deduced and threatened Tom, but the young lawyer saw that the man was in a frenzy of fear. Still, he could not keep his fingers off the nine thousand dollars.

On the day before the trial the young lawyer received a visit from a fellow lawyer in the next town. "I heard about your case, Claflin," he said. "I think this puts a new light on the transaction, doesn't it?" And he threw a document upon the table. Tom picked it up. It was another will of Miss Martha's.

"She made that about a month ago," said the visitor. "Come over to Stapleton to do it, I guess, so that nobody in this town should know. Of course, it antedates the will you are fighting over, but—"

Claflin sat long in thought that evening.

"You won't you withdraw at the last moment?" pleaded Annie in court the next morning. "Dear, we have the cottage—and, after all, that will may be genuine."

Tom said nothing but clasped her hand in his. And Annie resigned herself to her lover's will in the matter.

When the case was called, however, he annulled the court and spectators by saying:

"We do not accept this will as genuine. Your Honor, but, in deference to the wishes of my client we are willing to accept the sworn statement of Mr. Maine and his witnesses to the effect that the will is genuine, and to withdraw."

And the will was admitted to probate.

Maine was flushed with triumph. He was not the man to let well enough alone. The revulsion from his fears of prison proved too strong for his good sense. He approached Tom in the courtroom, after the court had adjourned.

"Wait," he sneered. "I guess you did the wise thing in withdrawing your case. You'd share lost your case, and I'd have had you driven out of town, too. It takes a big man to cross my will."

"I hope you'll enjoy your property," said Tom. "But why didn't you take the cottage, too, while you were about it? Tom threw away two or three thousand dollars there. And you might just as well have had it if you had had the nerve."

"What do you mean?" bellowed Maine truculently.

"I mean," said Tom, thrusting his face forward and looking the other squarely in the eye, "that if you hadn't been a thief and a rogue you could have got everything. Here is Miss Crowe's will, and it leaves you everything, cottage included."

He thrust the document under Jim Maine's face.

"It does, does it?" roared Maine. "Then I'll have it."

"No, you won't," answered Claflin. "This will was executed three days before the forged one that has been admitted to probate."

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

DIFFICULTIES IN MINNESOTA

Minnesota has a good sprinkling of what may be termed real radicals. They do not object to the designation. They shout their radicalism. And just now they are giving some who declare they are not radicals, but progressives, an example of the difficulties that attend any sporadic political movement which has a rather nebulous definition of discontent as its basis and which seeks to seize power without recognition of the rights of all of the people.

The situation in Minnesota has reached such a point that North Dakota's rather confused politics in the past may seem to be clear and mild. Senator Magnus Johnson was renominated by a huge majority and certainly has appeared as radical as he said he would be, but a group in the state labor convention denounces him by inference and charges he failed to support labor's measures as he promised.

The state labor convention, too, found itself divided on the advisability of a third party in the country, which should be made up of radicals. A large group, Communists, voted against the party because they are opposed to the LaFollette group. A larger group voted against a new party because they desire to adhere to the policy under which organized labor has grown so powerful in this nation—recognizing the chief purpose of the unions, that of bettering their economic conditions.

Again the political situation in the Gopher state is muddled when various factions strive for the honor of organizing LaFollette for President clubs. The Socialists want to organize them. The anti-Socialists, who say they are progressives, want to organize them.

The activity of the radical minorities in Minnesota in many organizations makes it quite evident that they are not concerned with anything except power for themselves. They do not wish to become members of an organization and through a laborious process of education seek to make their views prevail. They, by intrigue and manipulation, are striving for power for themselves, and they are willing to sacrifice most anything to that end.

It may be poetic justice that some of those political forces who have encouraged radicalism and socialism, are now fighting the same political thought as well as the wholly revolutionary communist organization.

BICEPS OVER BROW

Some 1200 graduating students, in caps and gowns and with joyous faces, marched before their president the other day to receive their diplomas at the University of Minnesota.

J. Ward Ruckman was not among them. He stood on the sidelines and sadly watched the significant procession on its course to its big goal. And yet he had been one of the star students of the university.

In his first year, Ruckman engaged in extra-curricular work, kept ahead of his studies and edited the college papers. In his junior year he was president of his class and he accumulated scholastic honors in every subject he selected.

In his senior year he was made a member of Phi Beta Kappa, the honorary scholastic society, and was scheduled to receive his degree with high honor.

In his four years as a successful student he played tennis, hiked and indulged in a dozen other sports of the college. Last summer he paddled a canoe from Minneapolis to St. Louis, landed a job on a river boat as a laborer, and worked his way to New Orleans and back to Minneapolis.

Physically and mentally he showed himself to be of the right stuff and a real credit to the educational institution he attended.

What was the matter with Ruckman? Why was he denied his graduation papers and honors? This and nothing more: He had failed to take the freshman course in the college gymnasium!

Higher education is a queer thing in these days, as Ruckman has discovered to his sorrow. It isn't so much a matter of brains as it is of brawn—not so much a matter of brow as it is of biceps. A people are taxed to support a college that lives by that rigid and inane rule.

PAPER

In the year 1939 Canada will furnish four-fifths of the newsprint paper used by American newspapers. So estimates Lord Rothmere, the foremost British publisher. Canada already supplies half of our newsprint.

This would be a dangerous near-monopoly in the hands of any but the most friendly of neighbor nations. A monopoly in newsprint would be more powerful than almost any form of political power—if it weren't that the thing that counts is the message the ink carries, rather than the paper itself.

The Declaration of Independence would fill only part of a newspaper column. But look at its power. Message, not space, is what counts. Your newspapers are going to get smaller at the years slip by.

STIMULATION

If you have an exceptional craving for candy or liquor you can get rid of it by eating more vegetables, according to Lucy Gillett, the nutrition expert.

However, sugar and liquor are Siamese twins. And the desire for them is more mental than physical. If there is any mental or emotional stimulation in vegetables, it has yet to be found. People stimulate their pancreatic gland by sugar or alcohol to get mental exhilaration rather than physical.

HE WILL DISCUSS HIMSELF

Senator Brookhart has been heard from on the presidential campaign. He will support neither Coolidge nor LaFollette, he says, but will "discuss the issues" of the campaign. It is suspected that Senator Brookhart will not be adverse to discussing himself.

Editorial Review

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

THE MUIR CASE

With the judicial procedure of our neighbors beyond our northern border it is neither wise nor expedient for Americans to interfere, even to the extent of commenting on it adversely. And especially should we, with our far from proud record of homicides, find any except the most cautious of fault with the way in which the Canadians deal with their murderers.

With this preface, it cannot be objectionable to express wonder, and something of regret, that the Canadian authorities could not see in the circumstances of the shooting of Henry Lavolette by Walter Muir any reason for commuting the latter's death sentence or granting him a new trial.

There is some foolish talk going about to the effect that because Muir was an American who had killed a Canadian the mitigating circumstances of his crime were ignored. That is so nearly unbelievable that it can be dismissed as presumably false.

Yet Muir was little more than a boy, and his mistake of intention at the time goes no small distance toward proving lack of the intention and premeditation which are as necessary in Canada as here in establishing the crime of murder. Mitigation of his punishment, too, was urged by reputable persons on both sides of the border with these and other arguments seemingly of not a little weight.

The case has attracted so much attention that the Canadian authorities, forgetting the fact that they owe us no explanation or defense of their policy, have constituted courts, might give us something of both. It is not denying that they were right to ask the reasons in a case where leniency appears to have been more than excusable.—New York Times.

THE CURE FOR GRADE CROSSINGS

According to a report just issued by the North Dakota highway commission, forty-two grade crossings are being eliminated in that state—have been eliminated the past year, and the commission announces that it has committed itself to a settled program of a similar reduction of grade crossings each year. Pretexts to the existence of this state's problem, largely signed by locomotive engineers and firemen for the abolition of grade crossings had been presented, in which it was urged that the deaths and accidents due to the existence of such crossings were not the only evil result, but that the shaken nerve of the men at the throttle shortened their lives and made possible an increase in the number of accidents.

In the building of a highway system in a young state, the avoidance of these death traps should be the first consideration of the engineers. It is then possible. Later, when money has been expended in building a highway, it is exceedingly difficult to abandon the route and get finances rebuilt, but that is the shaken nerve of the men at the throttle shortened their lives and made possible an increase in the number of accidents.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

When Nancy took away Mrs. Woodchuck's picnic basket and put it in a safe place to keep for her, Reddy Fox was so furious that he could have bitten his own tail off almost.

"Just when I was all fixed for a scrumptious picnic dinner!" he cried, "to think of having it taken from under my very nose."

He didn't dare to follow Nancy, for Reddy wasn't allowed in Happy Go Lucky Park at all.

Master Zip put up signs everywhere which said, "Foxes and weasels not allowed in."

Reddy Fox thought of every way he could to get Mrs. Woodchuck's picnic basket. But it wasn't a bit of use.

After a bit he just had to sink off into the deep, dark woods where there weren't any woodchucks or picnics or anything, and think how badly he had been treated.

In the meantime, Nancy put the basket in a place that said, "Baskets and packages checked here."

She got a check for it and went and gave it to Mrs. Woodchuck.

"You'd better put this check in your pocket," she said. "When you want your basket just give it to Mister Zip and he'll hand your basket out. It's safer that way. I was afraid something might happen to it on the ground."

"Thank you, ever so much," said Mrs. Woodchuck, and went on with her knitting, wondering what time Mister Woodchuck would be there for his supper and if she had better call her boys out of the puddle pond where they were wading, and get on their shoes and stockings.

At that very minute Mister Zip called to Nick, "Nick, there's a big

wasps' nest over on a tree near the gate. Come along and help me get it down, will you?"

"Certainly, sir," said Nick, obligingly.

"Bring a basket," said Mister Zip, "and hunt up a long stick and be sure you get a lid to cover the basket. We won't want to get stung."

"All right, sir," said Nick. So he got a chip basket and a lid and a stick and away they went to find the wasps' nest.

Pretty soon they found it. Nick gave it a poke with his long stick and it dropped plumb into the basket—Mister Zip smacked on the lid.

"Ha, ha!" laughed the fairman. "That was slick. Never got stung once, did we? Now carry it over and put it under those bushes and we'll dump it over the cliff tomorrow when we have more time."

So away went Nick and Mister Zip.

After awhile Reddy Fox came out of the deep, dark woods, hungrier than ever. It did seem as though he just couldn't keep away from the spot where Mrs. Woodchuck's basket had been.

Suddenly he stopped and blinked his eyes. There was the basket again as sure as anything! Nancy must have brought it back.

"Oh, boy!" he cried. "Now for a gorgeous meal or my name isn't Reddy Fox."

The next thing he did was to poke off the lid with his nose.

"Ouch! Murder! Help!" he yelled. For the wasps were pretty cross by that time and ready to sting anybody that came near them.

Poor Reddy couldn't see out of his eyes for a week, but I think he learned a lesson. If he didn't, I'm sure he should have, don't you?

Nothing makes a defeated candidate madder than going back to work.

FABLES ON HEALTH VACATIONS

When Mr. Jones of Anytown arrived with the Mrs. and youngsters at the vacation resort, there sat the usual assortment of fat gents playing pinocle and uncomfortably garbed women playing bridge or mah jong.

"What the dickens do they go on a vacation for?" Mr. Jones queried of Mrs. Jones.

And yet the pinocle-bridge scene may be found at countless thousands of resorts. Grown men and women go on vacations and do little more than play cards or similarly dodge boredom.

These people could well take lessons from their children, who use this opportunity to let loose pent-up suppressions of the year and run about shouting and playing.

Of course every fat portly gent can't play Indian or tag, but he can learn a lesson of letting his mind get into healthful paths. He can get away from the hotel steps and hike along tree-covered trails, or across sweet-smelling country meadows.

There are a thousand things he can do that would reduce his girth and put him in far better condition when the vacation ends—that is, unless he is an invalid.

If a card table and a hotel porch is the best a man can do, he would almost be better off to stay at home and spend his vacation at the Indian clubs of a gymnasium.

THE DESERTED HOME

Alone it stands beside the dusty road, Where are the friends it used to love to know, Who gathered round its welcome beaming hearth, And called it 'Home Sweet Home' so long ago?

No more glad echoes stir its dim old walls, No more the laughter and the merry glee, Resound in sweetest music through its rooms, But all is wrapped in silent mystery.

Adown the garden path the roses bloom, The purpling grapes are hanging overhead; But all is sadly vacant and forlorn, Like to a world whose inmates all have fled.

The jasmine's perfume, borne upon the breeze, Brings back sweet memories of days gone by, I see the faces of friends loved and lost, And wipe a burning tear drop from mine eye.

As fledgelings leave the nest when they have grown, The children from their homes flit far away, Their parents fondly hope and wait alone, Then die, and leave the homestead to decay.

BETTER CHANCE FOR BABY

By Albert Apple

The older generation is a bit bewildered as it watches some of the new-fangled scientific ways of rearing babies. We quote a white-haired grandma.

"Land's sakes! If these modern baby doctors are right, it's a wonder to me that all the infants didn't die in the cradle back yonder when I was young."

"Everything has to be sterilized—spoons, can openers, nipples for nursing bottles, rattles, cooking utensils. We never thought of boiling things baby used long ago."

"My children drank water right out of the spring. Now it has to be boiled. Cow's milk isn't good enough—has to be pasteurized."

"Baby is isolated. Room of his own. No one allowed near him except mother. We used to cuddle them right into bed with us. And everyone who came to the house kissed and fondled them."

The answer to this is that a much higher percentage of babies died in the old days than now. You frequently read about some scientist boasting that the average duration of human life is longer by years than it used to be. This doesn't mean that people who reach maturity live much longer. It means that fewer children die in babyhood and early youth. This brings the average up.

For this, thank science and its "new-fangled ways"—especially sterilization.

Another thing: Babies have to have greater care now because there are more things to be careful about than there used to be. More reasons, that is, for being careful. More germs—particularly common colds, so dangerous to infants.

Our generation is living unnatural lives, compared with grandma's generation. Physically we are weaker, and this shows in the inheritance. The health environment into which a modern baby is born is decidedly inferior to that back yonder. Water, food and even the air are more polluted. Each year, fewer mothers can nurse their young. That's a result of living unnatural lives.

Young mother, obey the doctor's instructions unless you want to endanger your child's life. Don't let the old-timers stir you from your determination to give baby the best protection available by modern science. The health of womanhood and manhood is largely determined in the cradle.

As Jack threw the letter down in my lap he said:

"This is a nice thing for a husband to get after three years of unbounded confidence in his wife."

I immediately forgot to be hurt in my sudden, overpowering rage. Before I had even read the letter I said:

"Does that mean, Jack, that you have lost confidence in me?"

"Read the letter, Leslie. You will see that it would be almost impossible for any man not to lose confidence in his wife when he finds out that she has been keeping from him the fact that a former sweetheart of hers gave her a two hundred thousand dollar wedding present. Why, the whole thing is like a De Maupassant story."

"I didn't lose confidence in you, Jack, when I found that a former sweetheart of yours had given you a child. In fact, I took that child and made it my own."

"Well, I can't very well wear a string of pearls, Leslie, even if I were as self-sacrificing as you were."

"Don't insult me, Jack. I have intended for the last few months to tell you all about them, but a certain series of unfortunate episodes has come up in connection with them, and I naturally dreaded to do so. However, I never thought that under the circumstances you would not understand exactly my position in the matter."

"I don't know your position, Leslie."

"All right, I'll tell you. Then, little Marquise, I com-

menced at the beginning and told Jack the whole story. I told him that at first I was perfectly innocent and accepted the pearls as a gift of beads from my sister Alice, who in a foolishly romantic compact with Karl Whitely, had given me the jewels. I told him how Karl had been all his life collecting them for me, and that I did not know they were anything but a string of beads until that night at the restaurant when they were broken and I took them to be restringing.

"I should have told you all about it then," I said to him, "but you will remember that that was the time you needed six thousand dollars and asked me to go, and get it from my father. I did not want my family to know you had been gambling in stocks, and naturally I did not want to ask my father for that much money, particularly as he was very ill at the time. I took the easiest way, Jack—I sold three of the pearls."

"I couldn't tell you this, because I knew you would be perfectly furious. However, I thought after you had given me the money to pay back the loan which you thought you owed my father, I would tell you all about it."

"In the meantime one of the wait-ers had picked up that missing pearl and taken it to blackmail me for it. Ruth Ellington, whom I told about it, advised me to cable Alice, which I did, and I received a cable from Karl telling me to go and consult his lawyers. I went to see them and they insisted upon buying the stone back from the man rather than to have any trouble and publicity for my father's letter to me which I will show you if you wish, Jack," I said to him.

MANDAN NEWS

PAVING AGAIN IS UNDER WAY

After having been delayed for nearly a week due to the repeated rains, the Woodrich Construction company's "paver" was put into operation again yesterday morning on the Main street alley between First and Second avenues.

The paving of the alley to Fifth Ave. N. W. will be completed and the machine then moved to the east end of the city where a grading crew is now preparing the roadbed east of the N. E. underpass for paving for a distance which will add about three-fourths of a mile to the Main street paving.

On completion of that work the crews will be moved to First Avenue N. W. and the two other blocks on First Avenue N. W., and Second St. N. E. between Collins and First Ave. for work there. The contract for the five additional blocks of paving was let by the commissioners on Wednesday evening for concrete and at the same price as the balance of the city. The new contract also calls for installation of concrete curbs on nearly a dozen other blocks which are now gravelled and not to be paved.

SOMETHING NEW

ONE OF THE SEASON'S "DIFFERENT" BATHING SUITS

As a cool, comfortable and highly decorative beach costume, we give our unqualified support to this model. It is of printed Japanese material and includes a parrot, cape and an abbreviated bathing suit. And thrown in for good measure is a head band that will keep bobbed locks just where they belong.

You will readily agree that Louise Jennings, the model, must have created something of a sensation at Atlantic City when she appeared on the sands so interestingly attired.

Kiddies' Evening Story

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Bird Travelers

"There is Mother Plover," said Mother Nature to Billie Brownie.

"She lives far, far, north, and does most of her traveling at night."

"She eats and rests during the day. When she gets north she is busy always in bringing up the birdlings. She teaches them to fly, and as the summer is very short each way up north she has hardly taught their lessons in flying and in Plover ways before it is time to travel way, way down south again. Ah, what a traveler she is."

She goes as far north almost as she can, and then as far south as she can.

"So that she is almost always traveling because the distances she goes are so great."

"It's my disposition," she said at one time. "I like to go as far north as I can and then after I have been there for a time I think it would be nice for the children to see other countries."

"And I keep on traveling until I get way, way down in South America."

"There is the Western Grebe and, as his name tells you, he likes the western part of the country. He is very fond of the water and of diving, but he is very, very shy."

"Mr. and Mrs. Pelican and their children are so much at home in their nest that you wouldn't think they would ever move, but they, too, see different parts of the world."

"And often you will see them in a zoo, for they are so interesting to look at, that for those people who cannot travel the Pelican family is brought to them."

"The Sage-Hen family like it where there are few except the wild creatures."

"The gentlemen of this family dress themselves all up when they go a-courting, and puff out their chests and look very handsome indeed."

"But of all the travelers and of all my children in different parts of the world, I think Mr. and Mrs. Robin and the Robin family are the most friendly of all."

"Just because we may have seen more of the world than some of you have," they seem to say, "we will not put on airs."

"We will be natural and we will make ourselves at home."

"We will not tell you of things that are better in other parts of the country. We will be contented where we are."

"Some travelers are always complaining that what you have in the way of scenery and climate is not up to places they've visited. 'Here we've come, and here we will be happy.'"

"I have heard, too, Billie Brownie, that the Robins want to give a concert for the Fairyland and Brownland people soon."

"Oh, what good news," said Billie Brownie. "I would so like to hear one of their concerts soon."

"I see little Robin Redbreast now," said Mother Nature. "I will ask him when he would like to give the concert."

So Mother Nature asked little Robin Redbreast when he would like to have the concert, and he told Mother Nature that any time would suit him.

He was always so willing and so obliging. So it was arranged that the very next morning the concert would be given and the time set for the concert would be dawn.

The concert was given and it was a very beautiful one. Some of the other birds joined in the chorus, for the Robins said other voices should be heard.

But before the concert was over little Robin Redbreast sang this solo:

"Chirp, chirp, chirp. Twit, twit, twit. On this lawn is lovely I will stay for a bit."

"Chirp, chirp, chirp. Twit, twit, twit. I have traveled far, but this here has made a bit."

"Chirp, chirp, chirp. Twit, twit, twit. Chirp, chirp, chirp. Twit, twit, twit. Chirp, chirp, chirp. Twit, twit, twit."

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

DIFFICULTIES IN MINNESOTA

Minnesota has a good sprinkling of what may be termed real radicals. They do not object to the designation. They shout their radicalism. And just now they are giving some who declare they are not radicals, but progressives, an example of the difficulties that attend any sporadic political movement which has a rather nebulous definition of discontent as its basis and which seeks to seize power without recognition of the rights of all of the people.

The situation in Minnesota has reached such a point that North Dakota's rather confused politics in the past may seem to be clear and mild. Senator Magnus Johnson was renominated by a huge majority and certainly has appeared as radical as he said he would be, but a group in the state labor convention denounces him by inference and charges he failed to support labor's measures as he promised.

The state labor convention, too, found itself divided on the advisability of a third party in the country, which should be made up of radicals. A large group, Communists, voted against the party because they are opposed to the LaFollette group. A larger group voted against a new party because they desire to adhere to the policy under which organized labor has grown so powerful in this nation—recognizing the chief purpose of the unions, that of bettering their economic conditions.

Again the political situation in the Gopher state is muddled when various factions strive for the honor of organizing LaFollette for President clubs. The Socialists want to organize them. The anti-Socialists, who say they are progressives, want to organize them.

The activity of the radical minorities in Minnesota in many organizations makes it quite evident that they are not concerned with anything except power for themselves. They do not wish to become members of an organization and through a laborious process of education seek to make their views prevail. They, by intrigue and manipulation, are striving for power for themselves, and they are willing to sacrifice most anything to that end.

It may be poetic justice that some of those political forces who have encouraged radicalism and socialism, are fighting the same political thought as well as the wholly revolutionary communist organization.

BICEPS OVER BROW

Some 1200 graduating students, in caps and gowns and with joyous faces, marched before their president the other day to receive their diplomas at the University of Minnesota.

J. Ward Ruckman was not among them. He stood on the sidelines and sadly watched the significant procession on its course to its big goal. And yet he had been one of the star students of the university.

In his first year, Ruckman engaged in extra-curricular work, kept ahead of his studies and edited the college papers. In his junior year he was president of his class and he accumulated scholastic honors in every subject he selected.

In his senior year he was made a member of Phi Beta Kappa, the honorary scholastic society, and was scheduled to receive his degree with high honor.

In his four years as a successful student he played tennis, hiked and indulged in a dozen other sports of the college. Last summer he paddled a canoe from Minneapolis to St. Louis, landed a job on a river boat as a laborer, and worked his way to New Orleans and back to Minneapolis.

Physically and mentally he showed himself to be of the right stuff and a real credit to the educational institution he attended.

What was the matter with Ruckman? Why was he denied his graduation papers and honors? This and nothing more: He had failed to take the freshman course in the college gymnasium!

Higher education is a queer thing in these days, as Ruckman has discovered to his sorrow. It isn't so much a matter of brains as it is of brawn—not so much a matter of brow as it is of biceps. A people are taxed to support a college that lives by that rigid and inane rule.

PAPER

In the year 1939 Canada will furnish four-fifths of the newspaper paper used by American newspapers. So estimates Lord Rothmere, the foremost British publisher. Canada already supplies half of our newsprint.

This would be a dangerous near-monopoly in the hands of any but the most friendly of neighbor nations. A monopoly in newsprint would be more powerful than almost any form of political power—if it weren't that the thing that counts is the message the ink carries, rather than the paper itself.

The Declaration of Independence would fill only part of a newspaper column. But look at its power. Message, not space, is what counts. Your newspapers are going to get smaller at the years slip by.

STIMULATION

If you have an exceptional craving for candy or liquor you can get rid of it by eating more vegetables, according to Lutz Gillett, the nutrition expert.

However, sugar and liquor are Siamese twins. And the desire for them is more mental than physical. If there is any mental or emotional stimulation in vegetables, it has yet to be found. People stimulate their pancreatic gland by sugar or alcohol to get mental exhilaration rather than physical.

HE WILL DISCUSS HIMSELF

Senator Brookhart has been heard from on the presidential campaign. He will support neither Coolidge nor LaFollette, he says, but will "discuss the issues" of the campaign. It is suspected that Senator Brookhart will not be adverse to discussing himself.

Editorial Review

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the views of the Bismarck Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

THE MUIR CASE

With the judicial procedure of our neighbors beyond our northern border it is neither wise nor expedient for Americans to interfere, even to the extent of commenting on it adversely. And especially should we, with our far from proud record of homicides, find any except the most cautious of fault with the way in which the Canadians deal with their murderers.

With this preface, it cannot be objectionable to express wonder, and something of regret, that the Canadian authorities could not see in the circumstances of the shooting of Henry Lavolette by Walter Muir any reason for commencing the latter's death sentence or granting him a new trial.

There is some foolish talk going about to the effect that because Muir was an American who had killed a Canadian the mitigating circumstances of his crime were ignored. That is so nearly unbelievable that it can be dismissed as presumably false.

Yet Muir was little more than a boy, and his state of intoxication at the time goes no small distance toward proving lack of the intention and premeditation which are as necessary in Canada as here in establishing the crime of murder. Mitigation of his punishment, too, was urged by reputable persons on both sides of the border with these and other arguments seemingly of not a little weight.

The case has attracted so much attention that the Canadian authorities, forgetting the fact that they owe us no explanation or defense of acts by their duly constituted courts, might give us something of both. It is not denying that they were right to ask the reasons in a case where leniency appears to have been more than excusable.—New York Times.

THE CURE FOR GRADE CROSSINGS

According to a report just issued by the North Dakota highway commission, forty-two grade crossings—representing the most dangerous in that state—have been eliminated the past year, and the commission announces that it has committed itself to a settled program of a similar reduction of grade crossings each year. Previous to the issuance of this statement, a petition largely signed by locomotive engineers and firemen for the abolition of grade crossings had been presented, in which it was urged that the deaths and accidents due to the existence of such crossings were not the only evil result, but that the shaken nerve of the men at the throttle shortened their lives and made possible an increase in the number of accidents.

In the building of a highway system in a young state, the avoidance of these death traps should be the first consideration of the engineers. It is then possible. Later, when money has been expended in building a highway, it is exceedingly difficult to abandon the route and get finances to rebuild. As an instance, on a stretch of seventy miles on the Northern Pacific railway tracks, not less than a dozen crossings were made. By a little planning and the building of a few stretches of new road, the highway commission reduced the number to two or three, keeping the highway for the most part on the north side of the railroad. The railroad was "there first" and by priority was entitled to this consideration. If humanitarian motives were left out of the calculations, the highway that weaves back and forth across a railroad, as for example, the St. Paul-Duluth road, jeopardizes both rail and automobile traffic and lives.—St. Paul Dispatch.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

When Nancy took away Mrs. Woodchuck's picnic basket and put it in a safe place to keep for her, Reddy Fox was so furious that he could have bitten his own tail off almost. "Just when I was all fixed for a scrumptious picnic dinner!" he cried, "to think of having it taken from under my very nose!"

He didn't dare to follow Nancy. For Reddy wasn't allowed in Happy Go Lucky Park at all.

Master Zip put up signs everywhere which said, "Foxes and weasels not allowed in."

Reddy Fox thought of every way he could to get Mrs. Woodchuck's picnic basket. But it wasn't a bit of use.

After a bit he just had to sink off into the deep, dark woods where there weren't any woodchucks or picnics or anything, and think how badly he had been treated.

In the meantime, Nancy put the basket in a place that said, "Baskets and packages checked here." She gave a check for it and went and gave it to Mrs. Woodchuck.

"You'd better put this check in your pocket," she said. "When you want your basket just give it to Master Zip and he'll hand your basket out. It's safer that way. I was afraid something might happen to it on the ground."

"Thank you, ever so much," said Mrs. Woodchuck, and went on with her knitting, wondering what time Master Woodchuck would be there for his supper and if she had better call her boys out of the garden pond where they were wading, and get on their shoes and stockings.

At that very minute Master Zip called to Nick, "Nick, there's a big

Calling in the Expert

wasps' nest over on a tree near the gate. Come along and help me get it down, will you?"

"Certainly, sir," said Nick, obligingly.

"Bring a basket," said Mister Zip, "and hunt up a long stick and be sure you get a lid to cover the basket. We won't want to get stung."

"All right, sir," said Nick. So he got a chip basket and a lid and a stick and away they went to find the wasps' nest.

Pretty soon they found it. Nick gave it a poke with his long stick and it dropped plumb into the basket—Mister Zip smacked on the lid.

"Ha, ha!" laughed the fairyman. "That was slick. Never got stung once, did we? Now carry it over and put it under those bushes and we'll dump it over the cliff tomorrow when we have more time."

So away went Nick and Mister Zip.

After awhile Reddy Fox came out of the deep, dark woods, hungrier than ever. It did seem as though he just couldn't keep away from the spot where Mrs. Woodchuck's basket had been.

Suddenly he stopped and blinked his eyes. There was the basket again as sure as anything! Nancy must have brought it back.

"Oh, boy!" he cried. "Now for a gorgeous meal or my name isn't Reddy Fox."

The next thing he did was to poke out the lid with his nose.

"Ouch! Murder! Help!" he yelled. For the wasps were pretty cross by that time and ready to sting anybody that came near them.

Poor Reddy couldn't see out of his eyes for a week, but I think he learned a lesson. If he didn't, I'm sure he should have, don't you?

Nothing makes a defeated candidate madder than going back to work.

A wife is a great comfort to her husband during those distressing times a single man never has.

After a girl contracts to go through life with a man the naturally hates to make most of the trip alone.

The law helps those who help themselves.

When a fisherman begins telling about his trip remember this: The largest bass ever caught weighed only 18 pounds.

You can't always take a man at his face value because some are two-faced.

Statistics show women have charge of spending 90 per cent of the money in circulation and the figures don't have to be proven.

Birds of a feather knock together.

The nice thing about a bad start is it gives you more to brag about after you do win out.

After eating supposedly young chickens in restaurants we have decided youth will not be served.

When you see a railroad crossing remember the power of the express.

We are anxious to see the first signs of summer and we will be just as anxious to see the last signs.

Make a mousetrap better than thy neighbor and you will catch all of his rats.

The cookbook tells you how, but you must read the handbook to see what.

FABLES ON HEALTH VACATIONS

When Mr. Jones of Anytown arrived with the Mrs. and youngsters at the vacation resort, there sat the usual assortment of fat gents playing pinocle and uncomfortably garbed women playing bridge or mah jongg.

"What the dickens do they go on a vacation for?" Mr. Jones queried of Mrs. Jones.

And yet the pinocle-bridge scene may be found at countless thousands of resorts. Grown men and women go on vacations and do little more than play cards or similarly dodge boredom.

These people could well take lessons from their children, who use this opportunity to let loose pent-up suppressions of the year and run about shouting and playing.

Of course every fat portly gent can't play Indian or tag, but he can learn a lesson of letting his mind get into healthful paths. He can get away from the hotel steps and hike along tree-covered trails, or across sweet-smelling country meadows.

There are a thousand things he can do that would reduce his girth and put him in far better condition when the vacation ends—that is, unless he is an invalid.

If a card table and a hotel porch is the best a man can do, he would almost be better off to stay at home and spend his vacation at the Indian clubs of a gymnasium.

Alone it stands beside the dusty road. Where are the friends it used to love to know. Who gathered round its welcome beaming hearth, And called it 'Home Sweet Home' so long ago?

No more glad echoes stir its dim old walls. No more the laughter and the merry glee. Resound in sweetest music through its rooms. But all is wrapped in silent mystery.

Adown the garden path the roses bloom. The purpling grapes are hanging overhead; But all is sadly vacant and forlorn. Like to a world whose inmates all have fled.

The jasmine's perfume, borne upon the breeze, Brings back sweet memories of days gone by. I see the faces of friends loved and lost. And wipe a burning tear drop from mine eye.

As fledgelings leave the nest when they have grown. The children from their homes flit far away. Their parents fondly hope and wait alone. Then die; and leave the homestead to decay.

BETTER CHANCE FOR BABY

By Albert Apple

The older generation is a bit bewildered as it watches some of the new-fangled scientific ways of rearing babies. We quote a white-haired grandma. "Land's sake! If these modern baby doctors are right, it's a wonder to me that all the infants didn't die in the cradle back yonder when I was young. "Everything" has to be sterilized—spoons, can openers, nipples for nursing bottles, rattles, cooking utensils. We never thought of boiling things baby used long ago. "My children drank water right out of the spring. Now it has to be boiled. Cow's milk isn't good enough—has to be pasteurized. "Baby is isolated. Room of his own. No one allowed near him except mother. We used to cuddle them right into bed with us. And everyone who came to the house kissed and fondled them."

The answer to this is that a much higher percentage of babies died in the old days than now. You frequently read about some scientist boasting that the average duration of human life is longer by years than it used to be. This doesn't mean that people who reach maturity live much longer. It means that fewer children die in babyhood and early youth. This brings the average up.

For this, thank science and its "new-fangled ways"—especially sterilization.

Another thing: Babies have to have greater care now because there are more things to be careful about than there used to be. More reasons, that is, for being careful. More germs—particularly common colds, so dangerous to infants.

Our generation is living unnatural lives, compared with grandma's generation. Physically we are weaker, and this shows in the inheritance. The health environment into which a modern baby is born is decidedly inferior to that back yonder. Water, food and even the air are more polluted. Each year, fewer mothers can nurse their young. That's a result of living unnatural lives.

Young mother, obey the doctor's instructions unless you want to endanger your child's life. Don't let the old-timers stir you from your determination to give baby the best protection available by modern science. The health of womanhood and manhood is largely determined in the cradle.

As Jack threw the letter down in my lap he said:

"This is a nice thing for a husband to get after three years of unbounded confidence in his wife."

I immediately forgot to be hurt in my sudden, overpowering rage. Before I had even read the letter I said:

"Does that mean, Jack, that you have lost confidence in me?"

"Read the letter, Leslie. You will see that it would be almost impossible for any man not to lose confidence in his wife when he finds out that she has been keeping from him the fact that a former sweetheart of hers gave her a two hundred thousand dollar wedding present. Why, the whole thing is like a De Maupassant story."

"I didn't lose confidence in you, Jack, when I found that a former sweetheart of yours had given you a child. In fact, I took that child and made it my own."

"Well, I can't very well wear a string of pearls, Leslie, even if I was as self-sacrificing as you were."

"Don't insult me, Jack. I have intended for the last few months to tell you all about them, but a certain series of unfortunate episodes has come up in connection with them, and I naturally dreaded to do so. However, I never thought that under the circumstances you would not understand exactly my position in the matter."

"I don't know your position, Leslie."

"All right, I'll tell you." Then, little Marquise, I com-

menced at the beginning and told Jack the whole story. I told him that at first I was perfectly innocent and accepted the pearls as a gift of beads from my sister Alice, who in a foolishly romantic compact with Karl Winney, had given me the jewels. I told him how Karl and I had been all his life collecting them for me, and that I did not know they were anything but a string of beads until that night at the restaurant when they were broken and I took them to be re-stringing.

"I should have told you all about it then," I said to him, "but you will remember that that was the time you needed six thousand dollars and asked me to go and get it from my father. I did not want my family to know you had been gambling in stocks, and naturally I did not want to ask my father for that much money, particularly as he was very ill at the time. I took the easiest way, Jack—I sold three of the pearls."

"I couldn't tell you this, because I knew you would be perfectly furious. However, I thought after you had given me the money to pay back the loan which you thought you owed my father, I would tell you all about it."

"In the meantime one of the waiters had picked up that missing pearl and tried to blackmail me for it. Ruth Ellington, whom I told about it, advised me to cable Alice, which I did, and I received a cable from Karl telling me to go and consult his lawyers. I went to see them and they insisted upon buying the stone back from the man rather than to have any trouble and publicity for me. I have Karl's letter to me which I will show you if you wish, Jack."

"All right, I'll tell you." Then, little Marquise, I com-

five miles south of the city was painfully bruised, and Mrs. Savage escaped injury when a rick of hay on which they were riding tipped over on a side hill Thursday. Both were partially pinned beneath the hay load. The horses became frightened and breaking the wagon reach ran away. On coming to a hill one of the animals stumbled and was badly trampled by the other and may have to be shot.

RUTH FAR OUT AHEAD OF PACK IN HOME RUNS

Babe Now Has 29 To His Credit. With Ken Williams Trailing in Americans

HARTNETT MOVES UP

Slugging Young Catcher of Chicago Cubs Rises in The Batting Race

Chicago, July 26. (By the A. P.) If anyone of Babe Ruth's rivals in the American league had any idea of overtaking the Bambino for 1924 home run honors, those particular clouters probably have had a change of heart. Hitting his 29th homer to the open spaces, Ruth today is so far in the lead that even Ken Williams of the Browns has almost given up in desperation. Williams is trailing ten homers on the wrong side of the ledger.

Ruth, although dropping five points still is the main individual in batting, leading the procession with an average of .379, with Falk of Chicago remaining second with .366. Goslin of Washington is batting third with .356, followed by Ty Cobb of the Tigers with .346. Next in the list is Jamieson of Cleveland with .344, while Earl Sheely of the White Sox is sixth with .342. The averages include games of Wednesday.

Jacobson of St. Louis, and Harry Heilmann of Detroit, 1923 batting champions, are not far away, but it is strange to record Heilmann's percentage at this time of the year below .330. However, it must be taken into consideration that Heilmann has been on the hospital list a good share of the time this season.

Capt. Eddie Collins of the White Sox has not slowed up on the bases, setting a dizzy race with twenty-six.

Other leading batters: Jacobson, St. Louis .331; Heilmann, Detroit .329; Mostil, Chicago .329; Meusel, New York .328; Collins, Chicago .324; Sewell, Cleveland .322; Speaker, Cleveland .318; Myatt, Cleveland .318.

Hartnett a Feature
Heavy slugging by Leo Hartnett, peppery young catcher of the Chicago Cubs, is the outstanding feature among the batters of the National League. While George Kelly of the Giants was gathering six homers in a week, Hartnett collected five. As a result, Hartnett passed the giant's slugging, and is trailing Jack Fournier of the Dodgers for the home run honors.

Hartnett's homers were made in three consecutive days, although not in consecutive games. Twice he made two in one game. His total is fifteen, which is one better than Kelly, and seven behind Fournier, who is leading with twenty-two. There has been little variance among the batting leaders. Rogers Hornsby, the Cardinal star, is comfortably lodged in first place with .312. His nearest competitor is Zack Wheat of Brooklyn who is hitting .309, a gain of five points over his mark a week ago. Hornsby, however, gained 11 points.

Max Carey, of the Pirates, continues to make the base stealers worry with a total of twenty-four.

Other leading batters: Fournier, Dodger .352; Roush, Cincinnati .351; Snyder, New York .348; Young, New York .345; Kelley, New York .344; Grigsby, Chicago .333; Frisch, New York .330; Hartnett, Chicago .330; Meusel, New York .318.

The remarkable see-saw battle among the three leaders in the American Association continues unabated with Neun, sensational St. Paul youngster, on top of the heap, with an average of .339. Drensen, also of St. Paul, who headed the procession a week ago, is second with .338 with Brief of Kansas City clinging to third place with .337.

Earl Smith of Minneapolis is the only one of those coming up from below who is in any way threatening the pace makers. He is fourth with .363.

The hitting among the home hitters has been rather light, with Russ Sell of Columbus on top with fourteen. The two Smiths, Earl of Minneapolis and Elmer of Louisville, each added one a piece, giving them a total of thirteen.

Neun has taken enough time off his batting to draw three stolen bases to his record of thirty-four.

Other leading batters: Shannon, Louisville .342; Christenbury, Indianapolis .342; Allen, Indianapolis .341; Russell, Columbus .336; Armstrong, Kansas City .333; Tyson, Louisville .332; Krueger, Indianapolis .332.

Billy Evans Says

A sport enthusiast likes keen competition.

An even match between second-rounders offers a bigger thrill than a champion against an also-ran.

Perhaps in no sport is the necessity of keen competition greater than in baseball. This is due to the fact that the race extends over six months' play.

To sustain interest over such a long period the teams must be evenly matched, thereby affording the keenest sort of competition.

Perhaps no greater example of this truth could be offered than the present races that are being staged in the American and National leagues.

In the National League the Giants, after a mediocre start, appear to again outclass the field.

With the season half over, Chicago

STAND BACK, FELLOWS!

Here's the Wild Bull Back in Our Midst, and Looking Just As Belligerent as Ever

LUIS FIRPO

This is the latest picture of Luis Firpo, celebrated Wild Bull of the Pampas, who has just returned to America to do battle with Harry Wills, the giant negro, next month. The picture was taken a few moments after the Bull's liner docked. You will observe that he is still a hard looking guy.

alone continues dangerous. Between the first and third club there existed a difference of nine games.

In the American League the failure of the Yankees to go out in front by a wide margin and the sensational spurt by Washington has made for renewed interest.

With half the season over in the American League, there existed a margin of only seven games between the first and seventh place clubs, two games less than between the first and third teams in the National.

That all the world loves a winner is certainly proved by the attendance at Washington.

Accustomed to a second division job, often a tailender, the fans of Washington flocked out in goodly numbers to pay homage to a winner.

In three days, including the Fourth of July games, the Washington club paid New York for over 80,000 people. Some business!

During the sensational spurt of the club, week-day crowds of from 10,000 to 15,000, ordinarily good business for a Sunday game were in attendance.

Any time either major league has runaway race it is bound to be reflected in the attendance figures.

With so evenly a matched field, the American League race promises to be drawn out, perhaps to the last.

LEADS BRITISH GOLF INVASION

CYRIL TOLLEY

The British golf team of amateurs which will invade America in September to compete for the Walker cup will be headed by Cyril James Hastings Tolley, former amateur champion and present holder of the French open championship. Tolley was here last in 1922 when he competed in the amateur at Brookline, losing to Ruddy Knepper of Sioux City in the third round.

voice in greeting during the game, and calls out, "Hello, you big ham!" or "Go pursue yourself, you large hunk of tripe!"

It may be the voice of an unknown. Chances are 10 to 1, or even 12 to 1, considering the humidity, that neither Babe nor Ty knows the identity of the person. How then can either of them be expected to pause and raise his cap and acknowledge the courtesy?

The idea of bringing the players and the fans together in a sort of openhouse meeting before the game would go far to remedy this evil situation. It is high time anyway that the rights of the fan received consideration. No fan likes to call a ball player a fat-head without having the salutation returned. Even a "same to you and many of them" would help a little.

The moral of this is plainer than Bull Montana's ears. Don't say "Yes Mam" to an Irish traffic cop.

WASHBURN TO PLAY IN CITY

Washburn's independent baseball team will meet the Bismarck Independents here Sunday afternoon at 3 p. m. Manager George Smith of the locals will have Bert Thompson, a crack right-hander in the box. Charley Tauer will pitch for Washburn.

The local team will play Karlruhe, one of the fastest semi-pro teams in the state, at Rice Lake, Sunday, August 3. There will be a celebration at Rice Lake, 11 miles north of Douglas, of Emancipation Day. Between 3,000 and 5,000 people are expected.

Speed of Riveting Hammers

Riveting hammers are made with six, eight and nine-inch strokes, and the speed of the piston depends somewhat on the length of the hammer. The speed of the piston also depends on the piston, the short piston running more rapidly than a long piston. These piston speeds will vary from ten to sixteen blows per second, or from 60 to 1,000 blows per minute. The faster speeds are commonly found in shipbuilding and car-building plants, and the slower speeds are found in boiler shops.

John Ainsley Master Thief

Copyright 1924. NEA Service Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 John Ainsley, a man of education and breeding, whose war wounds left him unfit for manual labor, pawns an ivory miniature of his mother in order to pay his landlady and to buy food. A prosperous looking bootlegger and all-round crook takes Ainsley to his home and attempts to enlist him as an accomplice. Insulted, Ainsley leaves the room.

Ainsley is disgusted at the sight of a pretty young girl in the company of a gross-looking man in a restaurant. Later he sees the prosperous looking crook join the man and the girl at their table. Ainsley finally recognizes the gross man as Daragon, a famous jeweler and rove. Daragon draws out a little card-board box and hands it to the girl.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
 I saw my acquaintance reach for the box; though I could not see his face, I knew that his eyes were shining with ill-suppressed desire. And then, as I saw his right hand drop into the pocket of his coat, I knew what he planned to do even before I caught a glimpse of the white object that he drew from the pocket. He planned to substitute one box for the other.

He turned on his heel, gave me a grudging nod of thanks, and walked out of the restaurant. I stood a moment smiling at the crook.

"You certainly do need me," I laughed. Then, though having recognized me he would have detained me, I walked over to my table. What did I, who was about to die, have in common with such a person? The thanks of himself, or of his pretty feminine companion, would not do me any good.

I paid my waiter and walked to the check-room. I will confess that I was slightly embarrassed at my inability to tip the coat-boy. But I need not have been; for Daragon, just denning his overcoat, saw me and seemed to regret his lack of courtesy. He handed "the cutbony" an extra coin.

"Let me do that much," he said, "even though you did me a shabby turn."

I stared at him. "What do you mean?" I asked.

"We were at the cloak-room entrance now. Daragon jerked a fat thumb toward the dining-room."

"Don't you think I had that crook's number? It was the girl I wanted. I guessed their game, and played the come-on simply to get her where I wanted her."

"And where was that?" I asked.

He grinned. "She's stuck on him. But I figured that if I caught him with the goods, she'd forget how stuck she was on him if I didn't play dirty on me."

"I suppose she dropped it, and you saw it fall. If you hadn't stepped in, I'd have had them dead to rights. Oh, well, a man can't get everything he thinks he wants."

A sense of the monstrous injustice of life came to me. That injustice could be remedied by money. For instance that jewel in Daragon's pocket could be turned into thousands of dollars. Even I, a gentleman, had heard in recent months of the "crime" of "finger" those men who buy the loot of thieves; I even knew where one or two of them resided. The skirts of poverty brush the feet of criminality.

I was about to die, because I had neither productive nor constructive brains. But perhaps I had the third kind, a destructive brain. If my fur-collared friend could make a success of crime, despite the paucity of imagination, which his clumsy scheme for robbing Daragon had disclosed, what a tremendous success I could achieve!

Honor? Adherence to it led me to the gutter, was about to lead me to the river!

Daragon stepped aside to let me precede him through the restaurant door. I exercised the only talent that I had, slight-of-hand. I substituted the second box, which the girl had given me, for the one that lay in Daragon's pocket.

I nodded farewell to him—to more than him; to all the past that lay behind him. And I kissed my hand to the future. I was nothing within me. I was a figure outside the law, I would make the supercriminal something more than the figment of a policeman's imagination. I would bring to my new profession the brain of a gentleman, certainly fitted to cope with the intellect of a detective. I would bring to my new art the culture of an aristocrat. I would raise it from the sordid level to which

Arthur Somers Roche
Copyright 1924. NEA Service Inc.
The Club of One-eyed Men

BEGIN HERE TODAY

John Ainsley, a man of education and breeding, whose war wounds left him unfit for manual labor, pawns an ivory miniature of his mother in order to pay his landlady and to buy food. A prosperous looking bootlegger and all-round crook takes Ainsley to his home and attempts to enlist him as an accomplice. Insulted, Ainsley leaves the room.

Ainsley is disgusted at the sight of a pretty young girl in the company of a gross-looking man in a restaurant. Later he sees the prosperous looking crook join the man and the girl at their table. Ainsley finally recognizes the gross man as Daragon, a famous jeweler and rascal. Daragon draws out a little cardboard box and hands it to the girl.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
I saw my acquaintance reach for the box; though I could not see his face, I knew that his eyes were shining with ill-suppressed desire. And then, as I saw his hand drop into the pocket of his coat, I knew what he planned to do even before I caught a glimpse of the white object that he drew from the pocket. He planned to substitute one box for the other.

I smiled with amusement. Also I appreciated this cunning. Unquestionably he had made purchases from Daragon. Probably he had let the jeweler understand that the purchases were gifts for his sweetheart. Then he had permitted Daragon to meet his lady. The lady had smiled into the pocket of his coat, I knew what he planned to do even before I caught a glimpse of the white object that he drew from the pocket. He planned to substitute one box for the other.

I smiled with amusement. Also I appreciated this cunning. Unquestionably he had made purchases from Daragon. Probably he had let the jeweler understand that the purchases were gifts for his sweetheart. Then he had permitted Daragon to meet his lady. The lady had smiled into the pocket of his coat, I knew what he planned to do even before I caught a glimpse of the white object that he drew from the pocket. He planned to substitute one box for the other.

Then, decisively, my crook shook his head. He pushed the box across the table, as though the incident were closed. Daragon argued a few minutes, seemed to make concessions which were not accepted, then slowly wrapped up the box and tied the string around it. He placed it in his waistcoat pocket. I wondered how they planned to get it away from him, to substitute the box which, underneath the table, the crook held in his right hand.

Then I saw. My friend the crook turned in his seat and pointed toward the door. Daragon looked in that direction. The girl's hand shot out; deftly it flicked from his pocket the box which, underneath the table, the crook held in his right hand. No one but myself was placed so that the action could have been seen. I waited for the next move, which must be the substitution of the other box.

But although the crook handed the girl the box, Daragon's attention was not held by the incident near the door, which was nothing more than an altercation between two guests of the restaurant, an altercation arranged, I suspected, for the sole purpose of affording time and opportunity for the robbery of the jeweler.

He began to argue with the crook. His hand reached for his waistcoat pocket, to produce the jewel. But the girl had not had time to effect the substitution. She went down white as Daragon leaped to his feet, overturning his chair as he did so. For his suspicions, never more than slumbering, I imagined, awoke to full activity.

Then, before he could attract the attention of the head waiter and the manager, I rose from my chair and walked swiftly to their table. I had no particular sympathy for the girl and her crook companion. But I had even less for Daragon. For while I watched him, I remembered some of the unpleasant tales that had been current about him in the years before the war. The girl was a thief, but Daragon was a filthy beast.

I gained their table in three strides. "You dropped something on the floor," I said. I spoke to Daragon, but looked squarely at the girl. If she had the quick wit of her kind, I could save her.

FINDS FIELDS FOR CHURCHES OF ALL KINDS

Plenty of Opportunity For Service in North Dakota, Says Joint Board

SEEKING COOPERATION

Method of Interdenominational Cooperation Is Explained

When representatives of five religious denominations can travel, study and confer together for a whole week, the interest of the public is somewhat aroused. This is what has just occurred in this State. Under the direction of the National Home Missions Council, five secretaries and agents of general home mission boards in conjunction with local denominational leaders, have made a joint field study of religious conditions of the state of North Dakota. Not every community has been visited, yet the four teams traveling by auto into different sections have been able to gather much first-hand information concerning needs and the general efficiency of religious work. Particular effort has been made to discover the unchurched fields. The results of the field study were tabulated and presented at a meeting of all the groups on Tuesday of this week—just one week from the day on which the teams were assembled at Jamestown, says an announcement of the group which continues the story of their activities as follows:

This Joint-Study was the result of a conviction on the part of church workers here as well as Home Mission Secretaries that both conditions and the Christian ideals call for a better distribution of Christian forces if the Church is to succeed and merit support. The task is too great for any single denomination. The forces of evil are well united and work as allies. The social and educational influences of communities have overcome the division forces of a strongly accented denominationalism. Men called of God to invest the life in Christian service are refusing to go where the scope of action is limited by the presence of several churches competing for a place.

Trying to Keep Steady Christian workers are realizing the necessity of adapting methods to the day in which they live. True to the North-Dakota spirit, the church executives of this state are endeavoring to keep step with the wheels of progress. They propose to face the task together and to devise a plan whereby the hands of each may be strengthened. At their meeting in Fargo Tuesday, arrangements were made for such an organization as will make possible fellowship and counsel in the work for the future.

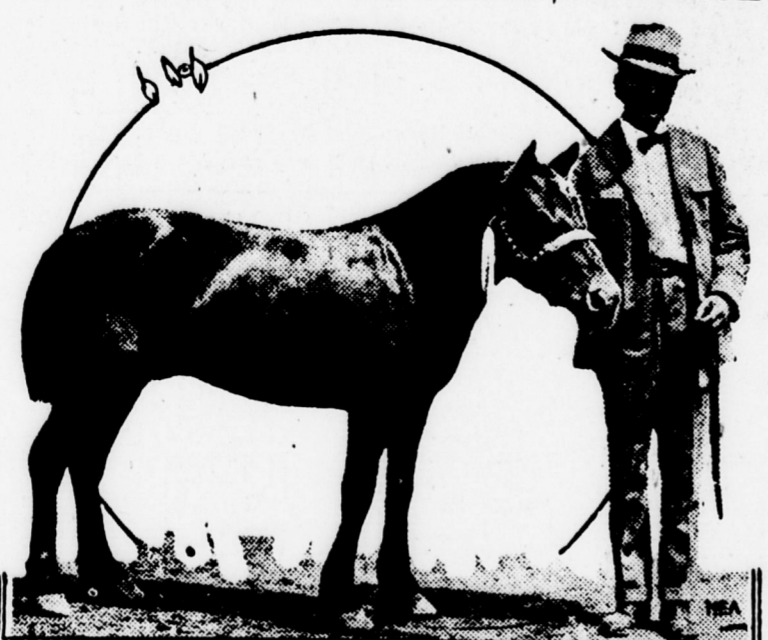

This is not a move for the uniting of different denominations or the promotion of union or independent churches. It is rather an attempt to distribute responsibility and to co-operate so that unchurched fields may be cared for and overchurched fields may possibly in time find some relief. There are plenty of fields for all, and only through co-operation can all be efficiently served. Experience on the field strengthens the feeling that the union or independent church does not offer the desired solution. Such a church is self-centered, having no connection with the wider circle of Christian service. Judging by the present efforts of union churches to get together and the fact that an agent has thus been employed to promote the organization of such churches, this course only complicates the problem by developing what is virtually another denomination. The better plan for the present seems to be to divide territory, and not disintegrate the religious forces at a time when all their enemies are so well organized.

Those in Study The personnel of those entering into this study and conference includes the following: Frank S. Hollett, District Sup't., Minot, N. D.; (M. E.); John Morange, District Sup't., Bismarck, N. D.; (M. E.); T. A. Olsen, Fargo District Sup't., M. E. Church; Louis E. Black, Gen'l. Field Manager, Presbyterian Board, Parkersburg, W. Va.; L. C. PONY HERO SAVED FROM DISGRACE

Rex, world's greatest pony hero, has not been forgotten in his time of need. His five owners, members of a rescue party that freed him from his prison in the New mine near Hicknell, Ind., a year ago, succeeded in borrowing enough money to pay his board bill just before he was to have been sold at auction to satisfy the debt. For four days the warmth of his body kept his human companions alive at the bottom of the shaft after they had been imprisoned by a fall of earth.

(M. E.): Ernest M. Halliday, General Secretary, Congregational Church Extension Boards, New York City; L. C. Barnes, Secretary of Baptist Home Missionary Society, New York City.

Rev. Vermilya Aids

The Home Missions Council of which C. E. Vermilya, formerly of this state, is the executive secretary, has for its aim the furthering of just such co-operation between field administrators in the whole country. The Secretaries of the Home Boards of twenty-eight different denominations compose this organization. Much splendid work has been done through this Council during the recent years. Montana has the most outstanding achievement in this respect. A splendid piece of co-operation is carried on and those engaged in it are enthusiastic in their praise of the plan. It is hoped that those interested in the social and religious welfare of North Dakota may lend every influence possible to the promotion of the spirit of co-operation here. The process may be slow, while great patience will be needed, but it is a move in the right direction.

CAMPAIGN TO PREVENT WAR BEGUN

National Office Candidates Will Be Asked Attitude On World Peace

Washington, July 26. (A. P.)—A campaign for world cooperation to prevent war will be opened tomorrow by 36 organizations represented in the National Council for Prevention of War.

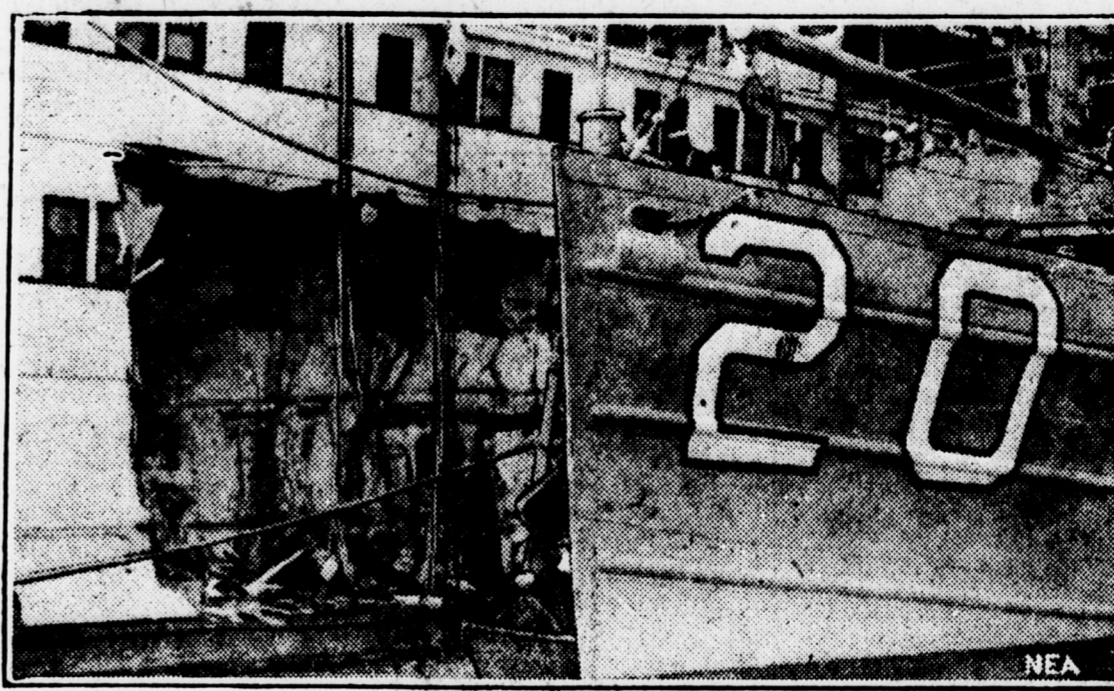

"Stop War! Cooperate!" is the slogan adopted for the movement, and its sponsors say that it will cover nearly every state in the union. One hundred and fifty thousand ministers have been asked to preach sermons on "World Cooperation" next Sunday, and public meetings will be held in many places.

The council has announced that all of the presidential candidates will be asked the question: "How far will you cooperate for world peace?" and that later the same question will be asked of candidates for the senate. It is proposed by the organization to carry on the work for an initial period of three months after the opening days of its drive.

Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of the council, said today the purpose was to "mobilize for peace now, and during the next three months to show these men who want to represent us in the national government that the will of the American people is for cooperation in international affairs."

A statement by the council said those behind the campaign believed

AFTER A COLLISION AT SEA

This is the great hole that was torn in the side of the steamer Boston when she was rammed by the tanker Swift Arrow off Judith Point, R. I. It was here that several passengers were killed. Hundreds of others were taken to Newport, R. I., and to New York by rescue boats answering the S. O. S. call. Here the disabled vessel is being towed to Newport.

"The time has come to eliminate 'isolation' once and for all, and establish 'cooperation' as America's foreign policy."

Organizations listed as represented in the council are: The American Association of University Women, American Farm Bureau Federation, American Federation of Teachers, Fellowship of Reconciliation, Foreign Policy Association, National Board of Farm Organizations, National Board of Y. W. C. Among officers and members of the executive board of the council are: Jane Adams, Carrie Chapman Catt, Will Irwin, President Lowell, William Allen White, Mrs. Louis D. Brandeis, Mrs. J. Borden Merryman, Dr. John A. Ryan and Gray Silver.

1,2,3,4,5 Years—Still a Young Car

20% more power—50% less upkeep—no valve grinding—no carbon cleaning

The Willys-Knight has the most powerful engine of its size ever built—and the quietest!

Here is a car with all the thrill of 42 horsepower—a car you can drive 50 miles and more an hour, hour after hour—without overheating—without loss of power—without engine trouble—without carbon cleaning—without ever needing valve grinding.

The Knight-type engine is the only engine in the world that actually improves with use. Simply because it has silent sliding sleeve-valves instead of pounding, noisy tappets.

Tests galore—conducted by unbiased, independent engineers of both America and Europe—have long since proved the superior power and stamina of the Knight engine over poppet-valve engines.

Think of the pleasure of owning a car whose engine literally is even quieter and smoother at 15,000 miles than when new!

While the majority of automobile owners keep changing from one car to another, Willys-Knight owners keep right on with their Willys-Knights.

It is common for Willys-Knight owners to report 50,000 miles and more without spending a cent for repairs on the engine. Think of the economy and satisfaction of that!

The Willys-Knight is the easiest steering car in America. Eight Timken bearings are used in the front axle. The average car uses no Timken bearings in the front axle, only ordinary bushings which wear quickly, cannot be adjusted and cause hard steering.

If you want a car of beauty and distinction—a car whose power is smooth as silk—a car that makes driving an everlasting pleasure—turn to the Knight!
